Lowell Street/ West Street intersection going under the knife

Town endorses improvement plan

By STEPHEN BJORK
WILMINGTON Major improvements are in-store for the Lowell Street/West Street intersection.

Avalon Properties is currently constructing 446 apartments and 46 age-restricted condominiums on West Street, just over the town line in Woburn, and will be spending in excess of $400,000 on improvements to the intersection.

Final plans include, at the request of Wilmington, sidewalks on both sides of Lowell Street. The sidewalks will run from the intersection west-bound as far as the Burger

King. Narrow right-of-way issues on the Burger King side of the street will necessitate sidewalk easements from three property owners.

Sidewalks will "wrap around" the intersection and will extend a short distance on West Street.

The streets will be widened entering the intersection. The westbound side of Lowell Street entering the intersection will include a dedicated left-hand turn lane and a through/right turn lane. The eastbound side of Lowell Street will include a dedicated right-hand turn lane.

Wilmington home invasion

Local man awakes to find intruder

By STEPHEN BJORK
WILMINGTON - A local man was more than a little startled when he awoke to find an intruder in his Quail Run home last Saturday morning. The Wilmington resident awoke at around 2:30 a.m. and noticed a shadow moving in the hallway outside his bedroom. Getting out of bed, he determined that it was, in fact, an intruder. He dialed 911 on a cordless phone, and before he could react further, the suspect fled out the back door. "We assume that the intruder heard the tones from the telephone as it was being dialed," said Wilmington Police Lt. Christopher Neville. "He must have realized that he had been observed, and fled." Police were dispatched to the scene, but were unable to locate the suspect. Quail Run is a short cul de sac located off of West Street.

The suspect was described as a black or Hispanic male standing approximately 5' 10" to 6' tall with short hair, broad shoulders and a thin build. The suspect gained entry to the house through a rear sliding door; the only door of the home to be mistakenly left unlocked. This is the second Wilmington burglary in just two weeks to be perpetrated while the occupants were at home asleep.

Conservation Commission faces off against Olin

Restriction placed on 20-acre parcel of contaminated property

By STEPHEN BJORK
WILMINGTON - The Board of Selectmen approved a permanent conservation restriction, blocking any commercial development, to be placed on 20-acres of the contaminated Olin Chemical property on Eames Street. The 20-acre parcel is located in the southern portion of the 53-acre property. The Board applauded the town's Conservation Commission on its firm stance on the issue.

They acknowledged, however, that the restriction does not affect, in any way, the future of the New England Transrail waste transfer facility being proposed for the property. Several years ago, the Conservation Commission issued an Order of Conditions against Olin for filling-in wetlands without a plan to replicate. In response, Olin offered, and the Conservation Commission accepted, a restriction to be placed on the 20-acre parcel.

Several years later, Olin appeared before the Conservation Commission seeking a certificate of compliance. The restriction put in place by Olin, however, did not accomplish what had been agreed upon and the Conservation Commission refused to issue a certificate of compliance.

Olin brought suit against the

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

50th Anniversary: Black Kat fire

By LARZ F. NEILSON
Wilmington once had a reputation as a wild place, with notorious bars and plenty of nightlife, both famous and infamous. From the end of prohibition (1934) to 1947, there were several bars near Silver Lake, and some of them developed bad reputations.

During World War II, Capt. Larz Neilson brought a ship into port in Boston. Shortly after arriving, he went out on Atlantic Avenue in the wee hours of the morning and hailed a taxi. "Take me to Wilmington," he told the cabbie. "Where's that?"

"The Black Kat," said Larz. That Boston cabbie didn't know the town, but he knew the place.

Of the local bars in that era, the Black Kat was the most notorious. It was on Main Street near Bridge Lane. Diagonally across the street was the Rainbow. The Black Kat was a popular venue for music, and there were regular broadcasts of "big bands" playing there. One name that comes to mind was "Sabby" Lewis, a Boston pianist and bandleader.

Nightlife, though, often brings trouble. The late Paul Lynch, chief of police, once said that the FBI often checked the establishment, looking for fugitives.

A bartender at the Black Kat kept a shillelagh under the bar, and would use it to break up fights. Dr. Ernest MacDougall often treated the injured. Early one morning, police brought in a man who had been stabbed. Dr. and Mrs. MacDougall were dressed in their finest clothes, ready to leave for a cruise. The wound had severed the man's aorta, and blood was spurting all around the room. They were able to save neither the man's life nor their fine clothes. By the end of World War II, the Black Kat nightclub had become the Blue Terrace restaurant. Anthony DeTorto remained as the owner. A menu from the Blue Terrace lists a roast beef dinner for $1.25, drinks from 55 to 85 cents, and wine for 25 cents. Vaudeville acts and wrestling bouts would pack the house. Some of the bouts had women wrestlers or midgets. Comedian Frankie Fontaine played there, as did the comedy team Sharples & Naples.

But the townspeople had had enough. In 1947, the town voted to go "dry." There would be no more liquor served. It could only be sold in package stores. In 1948, there was a particularly heavy snowstorm. The roof of the Rainbow collapsed. Longtime Wilmington resident Bill Fay remembers that a dozen people were hired to shovel the roof of the Blue Terrace, and that roof didn't collapse. The owners of the Rainbow, Mike and Mary Scelzo, rebuilt the restaurant but went out of business. DeTorto tried to operate the Blue Terrace on a dry basis, but there were few customers. Once Wilmington was once known for its bars and nightclubs before going "dry" during the 1950's. The building that once housed the notorious Black Kat nightclub in Wilmington burned down on October 16, 1956.

Congratulations Local Heroes!

Families of local soldiers currently serving in Iraq helped out Local Heroes packing boxes for their loved ones last Wednesday night. All of the families stated how their loved ones enjoyed the packages they received from Local Heroes. All the girls of the Daisy Girl Scout Troop #288 would like to thank Sgt. Scott Sencabaugh for giving them a tour of Wilmington's public safety building on Monday, October 16th. He taught them all about how the police department works. They met so many wonderful people, saw the dispatch office, jail cells and Kimo, the K-9 dog. They would like to thank Officer Eric Palmer for showing Kimo to them! They also would like to extend a warm thank you to all the firefighters on duty that day. Firefighter George Anderson let the Brownies climb into ambulances, the fire boat and the fire trucks! Their favorite part was watching the ladder truck do a "pretend" rescue. Well, maybe the favorite part was using the hose! Thank you again, to all of you, for spending such quality time with The Daisies!

NEW KIDDIE TAX RULES

This year's tax law has lengthened the "kiddie tax" period in which much of a youngster's unearned income is taxed at the parent's rate. That used to end when the child turned 14; it now extends to age 18. After that, the child is taxed like anyone else.

Basics: for 2006, $850 worth of investment income is untaxed; the next $850 is taxed at the child's rate—10 percent for interest or short-term gains, 5 percent on dividends or long-term gains. Over that any unearned income is taxed at the parent's top rate.

Income shifting to youngsters doesn't look as good as it did, nor do custodial accounts. It may be advisable to switch a child's investments to municipal bonds, low-dividend growth stocks, US savings bonds or the like. Or give a teenager appreciated assets that he can sell virtually tax-free if he turns 18 by 2010. For college savings, 529 accounts are more attractive; income is tax-deferred or even untaxed if used for educational purposes.

Financial planning has to work around the new tax rules. We can help you at:

Letters to the editor

It's good to have friends

Dear Editor,
October 22-28 is National Friends of the Library week making it a good time to publicly thank the Friends of the Wilmington Memorial Library who contribute so much of their time and expertise to significantly enhance our Library. Our Friends group began in 1997 and over the course of the past nine years they have donated over $100,000 to cover the costs of children, teen and adult programming, special collections, furnishings and equipment. The Friends support the children's summer reading program, the "Wilmington Reads" program, and purchased the speakers used in various programs and during movie presentations.

I know that the Wilmington Memorial Library is a source of pride for our community. I would like to publicly thank all of our members for their generous support over the years. I hope this week everyone will call the library at (978) 657-2967 or visit the Library, or the Library Website (www.wilmlibrary.org, click on the Friends link), to find out how to become a member of the Friends.

Thank you for your support,
James Lemay, President
Friends of the Wilmington Memorial Library

Our "out-of-towners" help Reading's "local girl"

Dear Editor,
Last Saturday night my younger sister, Eileen, a Reading resident, pulled together a tremendously successful fund raiser to help a little girl in her community defray some of the medical cost while battling brain cancer. Growing up in Reading I knew the community had what it took to help one of their own. Everyone gave something, time, money, labor and donations galore, everything from free pizza and dry cleaning to David Ortiz's autographed bat. I'm quite sure she filled a notebook listing the names and business of those to thank. Reading should be proud. However, my surprise came during a conversation I had with my hairdresser, Tania, during a visit to A Unique Salon located on Albion St. in Wakefield. When I told her what my sister was doing she said she would like to donate a gift certificate to be raffled off. It was clear, you didn't have to be from Reading and you didn't have to know the person, this was a great cause and people genuinely like to help. Thank you Tania for opening my eyes and for your very generous donation. Later that night when I returned home I mentioned to my 17-year-old daughter that she may want to help. She is always looking to add Community Service to her college resume. Here it took on a life of its own. I am so proud of the Tewksbury Community and the students of TMHS. My daughter, Caitlin together with some of her friends raised more than $250.00 selling gum balls, cookies and brownies in one afternoon. They passed out fliers at various businesses. Meadowlands Ice Cream, French's, and Deli King all donated gift certificates for the raffle Saturday night. Wicked Cheesy donated pizza for the event. Blue Jay Marketing donated a check as did the Restuccia family, Silpada Jewelry was donated by Martha Leone. To everyone that helped this cause I would like to extend a sincere thank you. The night was a huge success. I was so proud of my sister, she had been working for months putting this together and it was truly a win win for everyone. Thanks to all the family and friends that showed up. To the seniors at TMHS, Central Catholic and Austin Prep that got online to map quest the American Legion Hall in Reading, to come spend their Saturday night with some people they didn't know. Too often we hear only about the bad things kids are caught up in. It is time to acknowledge what a great group of kids we have in our town. It was not just limited to my daughters group of friends, everyone she told donated something. I grew up in Reading, many of my family and friends have moved back there after a few years, I'm always asked "Do you think you'll ever move back to Reading?" I can truly say Tewksbury is my Reading.

"Beautification Day"

Dear Editor,
Each year the parents of The Wildwood School volunteer their time to help rake, mulch and plant in front of our school to make it look beautiful. This year, however, we received the unexpected, much appreciated, and generous help of others. On behalf of The Wildwood School staff and families, I would like to extend a sincere thank you to Diane Harvey and her Girl Scout Troop #1026 for volunteering their time on Thursday, October 5th. You did a great job, ladies!! I would also like to thank Steve Sica and the two gentlemen that helped, from SJS Landscaping for volunteering their time and service on Friday, October 13th. Thank you for helping us, and it looks Wonderful!!

Sincerely,

Standing Eight Count

by Stephen Bjork

I have recently become intrigued by the world of the supernatural.

Unexplained phenomena occur every day all over the globe. With a little bit of research I have found that Wilmington and Tewksbury have documented more than their fair share of strange and bewildering occurrences.

Take, for instance, a story recently documented in which a Wilmington man accidentally hit his thumb with a hammer and his twin brother, who was watching television in his Tewksbury home, screamed in pain at that very instant. The Tewksbury man's thumb was soon covered with a black and blue mark while the Wilmington man suffered no pain at all.

A week later, those two twin brothers, Jim M. and Joe M., got into a heated argument. In a fit of rage, Jim M. began smashing all of his own fingers with a hammer, causing Joe M. to experience excruciating pain. Jim M. was subsequently arrested for assault and battery to himself with a dangerous weapon.

That story became especially eerie when it was discovered that the brothers were not identical twins, nor even fraternal twins, but were in fact Irish twins.

Just this week a Wilmington man offered indisputable evidence of his ability to read minds. Unfortunately, this gentleman is capable only of reading the minds of infants. Since these infants are not yet able to speak or understand English the gentleman is merely able to discern various baby-noises, vague desires for nourishment, and a colossal disappointment in Deval Patrick's stance on crime and illegal immigration.

Last year a Tewksbury senior citizen named Alfred A. gained national recognition for his uncanny ability to communicate with the deceased. Alfred's wife of more than 40 years passed away nearly two years before, but Alfred showed evidence that he is still able to communicate with her at will in a "Crossing Over with John Edwards" kind of way.

In an interesting twist, Alfred refuses to use his amazing gift. He claims that this is the first peace and quiet he has had in more than 40 years and that he has no intention of letting her, "mess this up."

Then there is Jeff L. of Wilmington who has a fairly similar situation. In Jeff's case, an apparition of his deceased mother appears before him at least twice a week, though luckily never while he is in the shower. According to Jeff, he has no control of when or where she will appear, but it generally occurs when his bed is not made or when the house needs a good dusting.

Jeff's mother will often stay for dinner, but doesn't eat much and spends most of her time criticizing his wife's cooking. She then leaves halfway through the meal.

Don't forget about Mark R. of Tewksbury who suffered a near death experience that continues to mystify experts around the globe. Mark had read about Jim M. and Joe M. and attempted to injure his own younger brother by smashing himself in the head with a hammer and inadvertently crushed his own skull. Mark's brother, incidentally, felt nothing and sustained no injury at all. Apparently it does not work between all brothers.

In multiple interviews, Mark has described the feeling of floating weightless and of seeing a bright white light. The light should have been blinding, but it wasn't. It emitted warmth, but did not burn. He felt compelled to move towards the light and he held his arms outstretched toward the light without fear. He was filled completely with love and joy while the gentle sounds of harps played somewhere off in the distance when, without any warning, the light went out and he was left in complete darkness.

He heard a voice say, "Hey Peter, the damn light went out again!! I thought you said the  thing was fixed!! Send this meathead back to Earth. We'll have to get this thing fixed and send for him later."

Suddenly, Mark felt a pulling sensation. He wanted the light to come back on, because back on Earth he was in debt up to his eyeballs. Nevertheless, he was pulled back to his basement workshop in Tewksbury where he was forced to spend the next twelve months recovering from his self inflicted traumatic head injury.

According to Mark, he no longer has any fear of death, and according to his wife, he no longer has any unsupervised access to heavy, blunt objects.

And what of Elizabeth V. of Wilmington who was 7 years old when she first exhibited the ability to speak a language that she had never been taught and had never had any exposure to?

Her parents were dismayed and sought the opinions of experts and talk show hosts around the country. She spoke this foreign language with an astonishing fluency as if she'd been speaking it all of her life. Experts theorized that the young girl must have carried the knowledge of this enigmatic language over from a past life, but none were ever able to match the guttural noises that she made with any recorded languages throughout history.

Scores of linguists studied the young girl searching for patterns or repetitive noises, but to no avail. One expert categorized her speech as "a severe Boston accent," but he was written off as a crackpot and drummed out of the industry.

Oddly enough, despite her comfort level with this mysterious tongue so complicated that the world's greatest experts were never able to decipher it, Elizabeth never was able to grasp even the most rudimentary elements of the English language.

Perhaps the strangest of all was the story of Nick M. from Tewksbury who claims to have undergone more than a hundred out-of-body experiences over the last three years.

His spirit would leave without warning and travel to distant lands, specifically Las Vegas and Atlantic City, while poor Nick was left motionless in his home with no corroborating witnesses.

Nick's mischievous spirit ran up tens of thousands of dollars worth of credit card debt and racked up millions of frequent flyer miles. His spirit even committed bigamy by marrying some floozy down in Mexico City. Luckily for Nick, his wife understood that he had no control whatsoever over his spirit. She has stood by his side through thick and thin, but is absolutely furious with his spirit.

Nick's spirit has apparently amassed a significant criminal record as well. It has been arrested on multiple occasions for disorderly conduct and public drunkenness. His spirit is often kept in a holding cell until it, "sleeps it off." Then it finally returns to Nick's body which has to endure a killer hangover.

Nick holds out the hope that his spirit will eventually settle down and enjoy the simple life of going to work five days a week and then visiting his in-laws on the weekends.

Yes, the world of the unknown is all around us. Perhaps your very neighbors have capabilities beyond the scope of modern knowledge. Perhaps they can read your mind, or can see right through your clothes, or something like that. If so, try to find some way to exploit their freakish nature for monetary compensation or, when that is not possible, feel free to persecute them for being different.

RMLD upgrades meter reading equipment

READING - Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) is currently upgrading its meter reading equipment to bring state-of-the-art mobile collection technology to customers in Reading, North Reading, Wilmington and Lynnfield Center. The change will speed the residential meter reading process, cutting in half the number of monthly reading days.

"The upgrading process may cause a temporary change in customers' billing cycles that could occur in October," said Engineering and Operations Manager Pete Dion. "The average cycle now runs from 28-33 days; during the transition, cycles may run anywhere from 16-40 days. As a result, customers may see a one-time marked decrease or increase in their bills if it covers fewer or more days than usual."

If you have any questions about your bill, please call Customer Service at 781-942-6424.

Longtime Wilmington resident named Worldwide President/COO Walker Magnetics Group

WORCESTER Walker Magnetics Group, Inc. has announced the appointment of Richard Longo to the position of President and COO for worldwide company operations. Walker Magnetics Group, the World's largest manufacturer of permanent, electromagnetic and electro-permanent magnet products and systems for industrial applications, is headquartered in Worcester, Massachusetts and has manufacturing, research and development capabilities in North America, Western Europe and Asia. The company delivers its product line to over 190 countries to support global manufacturing industries.

Mr. Longo is a 12-year veteran of Walker Magnetics Group. In his most recent position as President for North American Operations, Mr. Longo helped coordinate the expansion of the company into China with the formation of three strategic alliances, formed to position the company for rapid growth in the Asian market and to provide capability and capacity in both production and delivery of critical designs. In his new role as President and COO for worldwide operations, Mr. Longo will formalize and increase business alliances in the Asian markets to reinforce the company's regional and global capability. Mr. Longo will also focus on expanding R&D in North America and building capability in the United States. Strategic initiatives in other parts of the company's European and South American markets include solidifying recent growth in Chile and Brazil, expansion of the company's European business into the Eastern EU markets from its base in the Czech Republic, as well as realignment and reinforcement of western EU capabilities. With a complete line of industrial magnetic products, standard as well as custom designed and built to specific applications, offering more models and sizes than anyone else, the 110-year old company is the largest of its kind in the global market.

Mr. Longo is a career professional in manufacturing and microelectronics. His career, in addition to his 12 years at Walker Magnetics Group, has included key management positions at Raytheon and Teledyne, as well as a 10-year entrepreneurial effort during which he formed and became President of Warner Power, a manufacturer of transformers and power supplies based in Warner, New Hampshire. Mr. Longo's career has included a strong commitment to civic involvement, with terms as Chairman of the Planning Board, Chairman of the Water and Sewer Commission and member of the School Building Committee in Wilmington, MA.

His Board memberships have included The Greenerd Company, Nashua, NH; Thunder Line-Z, Hampstead, NH; and Warner Power, Warner, NH. Mr. Longo lives in Central Massachusetts with his wife of 41 years.

Walker Magnetics Group, Inc., a privately owned company, is the international leader in the design and manufacture of the largest range of magnetic products for light and heavy industry and the applied sciences. Formed in 1898 by Oakley S. Walker in Worcester, Massachusetts, the company has grown from a manufacturer of one primary product, the electro-magnetic chuck used in magnetic workholding in the machine tool industry, to a global concern with sales in excess of $40 million. The company's growth has occurred through strategic acquisition and expansion of product line, resulting in the largest range of custom designs for industrial use for workholding, material handling and separation applications. Walker permanent chucks, the worldwide industry standard, are used in a variety of turning, milling, grinding, EDM and other machining operations. Walker recently developed the world's largest rotary grinding chuck, 200 inches in diameter, designed to hold work pieces weighing up to 100,000 pounds. Walker lift magnets range from a capability of 30 kilograms, to large rectangular electric lift magnets with capabilities in excess of 50 tons used for material handling by shipyards, warehouses and steel mills. Walker Magnetics Group employs a workforce of over 350 worldwide, including sales, manufacturing and R&D. With manufacturing and R&D at all locations in North America, Asia and the EU, Walker Magnetics Group is positioned for growth in the Asian markets, Eastern Europe, the former Soviet states and South America. The company is headquartered in Worcester, Massachusetts. For more information, contact WALKER MAGNETICS GROUP, INC., 17 Rockdale Street, Worcester, MA 01606, 1-508-853-3232.

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

Oh Paleez! The only bright spot to sitting in the traffic waiting to cross Rt.62 on my way home from work is the Abacus Mortgage sign. There are so many things you can complain about. Take your pick. The traffic, the neverending construction, the number of apartment complexes, the polluted water, the number of cancer cases, or the number of Dunkin Donuts for that matter. Why complain about a sign that clearly is meant to be amusing...unless you are infact, Earl's ex-wife! Keep them coming. Abacus, you make those of us with a sense of humor, smile.

Has anyone else noticed that they are digging up the same areas of Lowell Street and repaving them over and over again? Is this called job security?

Wilmington

Hey, the new playground at the Shawsheen School is awesome. The town deserves credit for building it and paying for most of it and the people and businesses that donated money should be proud of themselves.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month and two local women are on a journey to help make strides against breast cancer. Nancy Colella and MaryEllen Taylor kicked off their first event by hosting a "Cruise for a Cure" fundraiser. The event took place in September and hosted over 250 people on an evening cruise around Boston Harbor. The event was even more successful than the ladies had expected with a great turn out of the community, friends and family.

On October 13th the ladies presented a check to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute for Breast Cancer Research totaling $7,600.00. Their goal was to help support women battling the disease as well as those who are survivors.

Local businesses including The Platinum Door Salon and Day Spa, Huntley's Hardware, Wilmington Jazzercise, Baystate Florists, Taylor and Son's Heating and Triton Construction, showed tremendous generosity towards making the event a great success. MaryEllen and Nancy would like to express their sincere thanks to all those who attended and other area business that contributed to making a

"Cruise for a Cure" a tremendous success. The women look forward to hosting this event annually to support Breast Cancer Awareness and Research.

Tech's Automotive Technology program receives national recertification

Continues to meet industry requirements in eight areas

BILLERICA - The Shawsheen Valley Technical High School Automotive Technology program has been recertified by the National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF) and the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE).

To achieve this coveted recognition, the vocational-technical school's training program underwent rigorous evaluation by NATEF using nationally accepted standards of excellence in areas such as instruction, facilities, equipment and instructor training.

Shawsheen Tech's Automotive Technology program earned certification in eight areas: Automatic Transmission & Transaxle, Brakes, Electrical Electronic Systems, Engine Performance, Engine Repair, Heating and Air Conditioning, Manual Drive Train & Axles, and Suspension & Steering.

"This is great news for automotive-minded young people and their parents," said Donald Seyfer, NATEF Chair. "Because this program increases cooperation between local education and industry leaders, it gives continued assurance that Shawsheen Valley Technical High School graduates will be employable technicians. As a result of the quality education provided by Shawsheen Valley Technical High School, the monitoring public will benefit since better repair technicians will join the workforce."

Upon completion of the evaluation, NATEF recommended that Shawsheen Tech be certified by the ASE - a national non-profit organization which tests and certifies repair technicians in addition to certifying automotive training programs.

Shawsheen Tech Transportation Department Chair Ben Hurley said that the continuation of national certification affirms the Automotive Technology program's commitment to excellence and noted that Shawsheen Tech has been nationally certified for the last 15 years.

"During the past few months, we have worked closely with NATEF to make certain that our program would meet strict industry standards," said Hurley. "Students will be assured of a quality education, and shop owners will be assured of getting highly-trained and highly-skilled job applicants. I am also grateful for the hard work of instructors Richard Lavoie and John-Paul Borriello."

The Shawsheen Valley Technical High School District includes Bedford, Billerica, Burlington, Tewksbury and Wilmington.

Wilmington Police Log

Correction:

The Wilmington Police Log, appearing in the October 11, 2006 edition of the Town Crier, incorrectly listed several charges as being brought against Janet Galante, 46, of 3A Kearsage Avenue in Woburn. Ms. Galante was arrested on October 10, 2006, but was charged only with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and failing to stay within marked lanes of travel.

The offenses of forgery/altering a motor vehicle title, operating an uninsured motor vehicle, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, and falsely attaching a license plate to a motor vehicle should have been listed under the charges brought against Hai Dinh, 35, of 8 Lafayette Avenue in Beverly. Mr. Dinh was arrested on October 7, 2006 and was originally charged with operating a motor vehicle with a suspended driver's license. The additional charges were brought against Mr. Dinh on October 10th in a police entry that appeared directly below Ms. Galante's arrest.

The Town Crier appreciates the opportunity to set the record straight and regrets the mistake.

The Job Hunt starts at the Library

Millions of Americans are employed in businesses small or large. Some dream of starting their own company, others worry about returning to the corporate world, and others wonder whether online or offline is the way to go. People in all these situations will find useful information on pursuing their careers with the business collections at the Tewksbury Public Library.

For many people, careers begin in the corporate world. The dreaded words "resume" and "interview" are enough to cause cold sweats for even the most confident person. Is there an ideal format for an electronic resume? Is a cover letter still required? What's the best way to prepare for a telephone or personal interview? Help with all these questions and more can be found in the section of resume books, where dozens of examples of standard and unconventional resumes are available. Nontraditional job-hunters (mid-career changes, first timers, and 50+) will also find information on tailoring their resumes to their unique situations. Once the newly tweaked resume results in an interview, turn to Don't Blow the Interview, 101 Great Answers to the Toughest Interview Questions, and Monster Careers: Interviewing. These books like offer preparation for the hard questions employees will ask, along providing tips on image and self-presentation.

Other people look to home-based businesses as an alternative to commuting. Whether you are a parent needing a flexible schedule or a visionary with a great idea, The Weekend Entrepreneur, Everything Home-Based Business Book, and Home-Based Businesses for Dummies will provide generic advance on the ins and outs of starting a home business. Beginners will find advice on organizing home offices, legal issues, and marketing. Ask at the library's Reference Desk to be directed to more specific titles on fields such as book selling, eBay, crafts, landscaping, day care, event planning, and more.

Although the dot.com bubble of the nineties has burst, opportunities for savvy businesspeople still exist online. The Unofficial Guide to Starting a Business Online details pitfalls and how to avoid them, explodes the myth that you have to be a computer expert, recommends time-saving services and forecasts upcoming trends. Start Your Own E-Business offers tips on web-site building, the pros and cons of keeping a brick and mortar store, funding, security issues, and other items that are unique to online businesses.

Most of the business books mentioned in this article can be found in the nonfiction section on the second floor, under the call number 658. While visiting Tewksbury Public Library, remember to check out the Business and Career Reference Section on the second floor. Although these items must be used within the library, browsers will find comprehensive job encyclopedias with details such as salary and training required, company information, and business newspapers and magazines like Forbes and the Wall Street Journal. The library offers a variety of business databases for the computer savvy such as Reference USA, Learning Express Web, and Mergent Online. These resources can be accessed any time from the comfort of a home computer by going to www.tewksburypl.org, clicking on "Online Databases," and logging in with your library card.

For more information about library programs, please contact the library at 978.640.4490 or check us out on the web at www.tewksburypl.org.

Black Kat fire

the Blue Terrace closed in 1949, the building was vacant for a few years.

It turns out that the owners of the building were doing a dance of their own - the tax dodge. From 1939 to 1951, they paid no real estate taxes. By changing ownership and seeking delays in court, the owners managed to stay one step ahead of the tax collector for 12 years.

The town hired a new assessor in 1951, an attorney named Frank Walters. At that point, the town had a judgement in its favor from the Land Court against the previous owner, Max R. Reiser. The new owner was a woman, whose husband was B. Ben Levinson, a lawyer. Walters went to work, tracking down the previous owners and having them sign affidavits. This task took him to several cities and towns around eastern Massachusetts. In one case, he was sitting on the front doorstep of a man at 7 a.m., waiting for him to come out.

The matter came back into Land Court on Aug. 13, 1951, with Levinson asking that the case be re-opened. Walters told the judge that Levinson had said in the Town Hall that he would try to re-open the case, boasting that it would tie it up for an extra six months in Land Court, and a couple of years in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts. The judge refused to re-open the case, and gave Levinson until October 22 to pay the taxes. On October 30, 1951, after a one-week delay due to a clerical error, Levinson presented Town Treasurer Grace Tilley a check for

In 1954, Carl and Marie Costello opened a restaurant, Carl & Marie's, in the Black Kat building. On July 12, 1954, Carl Costello was granted a permit by the Board of Selectmen for outdoor dancing. Costello said his intent was to provide a place for teenagers to gather without trouble. The dancing would be conducted in a fenced area, with entry only through the restaurant. The dancing was a hit, but it did not last. Next door in the same building, Tunney's Warehouse began holding furniture auctions, drawing large crowds. One night, Carl had just closed the restaurant, and a man approached him wanting a cup of coffee.

Carl was tired and told him he wouldn't pour a cup of coffee, not even for the governor. Well, how about the lieutenant governor? The man was Lieutenant Governor Sumner Whittier, and he got his coffee.

In December 1954, Tunney's announced a renovation project for the building, including a new storefront. Carl and Marie's moved across the street to the Rainbow building.

The furniture company ran big splashy ads, and in 1955, it advertised, somewhat ironically, a fire sale. The furniture was from other locations, but the advertising was prophetic.

By then, the Black Kat building had used up eight lives, and on Oct. 16, 1956, Number Nine came due. At this point, the building had the furniture store, a barbershop, a vacant store and an apartment in the back, which was the home of the Herman Von Kahle family. Mr. and Mrs. Von Kahle had eight children from 9 to 24, the oldest of whom was married. In the middle of the afternoon, Mrs. Von Kahle was lying down on her bed when she smelled smoke and heard the crackling of a fire. She ran into the furniture store yelling that her oil burner was on fire. Sales clerk Frances Pellerin, 19, called the fire department. The two women were able to escape and there was no one else in the building. The Wilmington Fire Department called in mutual aid from eight towns. Four fire fighters suffered minor injuries. The damage estimate was given as $250,000. At the time, I was a student at the Swain School. That afternoon, just after school had let out, I was standing in the stairwell, waiting for a second-trip bus. Looking out the window on the stairway landing, we could see a huge column of black smoke. In less than an hour, the building was gone. Firefighters were on the scene for several hours, mopping up.

The lot remained vacant for several years. Eventually, a gas station was built, which occupied the site for about 40 years. The Route 129 bridge was built next door. Today, the site is occupied by Cumberland Farms.

Conservation Commission and, following a protracted negotiation process, a new conservation restriction resulted.

"The prior restriction, that Olin self-imposed, that had so many holes in it that it looked like Swiss cheese, is going to be voided out and rescinded," Town Counsel Paul DeRensis told selectmen at last Monday's meeting.

The new restriction, according to DeRensis, took approximately a year to negotiate.

"Negotiations were extraordinarily difficult, particularly over the issue that this restriction is going to run in favor of Wilmington," DeRensis said. "It could have run in favor of other organizations."

Negotiations between the Town and Olin were mediated by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). The restriction currently has the blessing of DEP and of the United States Environmental Protection Agency.

As a result of the restriction, which lasts in perpetuity, no building or development may take place on the 20-acre parcel.

"The only thing that can occur on this parcel is primarily the work necessary for (environmental) remediation of the site," DeRensis said.

That particular portion of the Olin site was never part of New England Transrail's plans to re-develop the property as a waste-transfer facility. Selectmen Suzanne Sullivan and Michael Newhouse made a point to clarify that the restriction has no effect on the Town's attempts to block the New England Transrail proposal; that they are separate issues only tangentially connected.

New England Transrail is seeking a federal exemption through the Surface Transportation Board to develop the property.

"The Conservation Commission, to their credit, has stood tall," DeRensis said. "They have been firm, they have insisted on the original language of the original order being maintained. That has helped us to obtain as good a restriction as we were able to get."

The Board voted unanimously to approve the restriction.

Where are the birds?

Fall phenomenon means feathered friends are "disappearing" from backyards.

For people who feed birds, there are few events that are more unsettling than the disappearance of these fine feathered friends from backyard feeders. It is usually a fall phenomenon—though not exclusively—and this season is proving to be one of those times. So, where did the birds go and should we be concerned?

The probable explanation for these "disappearances" is simple and reassuring—a rainy spring and summer, as we just experienced, results in an increase of natural or "wild" foods. Given a choice between feeders and wild food, birds tend to opt for the latter (food such as berries, weed seeds, mast [acorns and other nuts], and invertebrates). These food sources are subject to fluctuating availability on a seasonal and year-to-year basis.

Birds concentrate where wild foods are plentiful and availability of food will affect the placement of winter residents.

For example, if Massachusetts has a poor mast crop, blue jays will migrate farther south searching for areas where natural foods are more abundant. Even our winter residents do not rely completely on feeders for sustenance.

Behavioral experiments revealed that even in the dead of winter feeder food accounted for only about 25% of the diet of black-capped chickadees.

So, what should we do when the birds seem to avoid the squirrel-proof feeders that we take the time and expense to set up and maintain? Monitor the feeder and keep it stocked for their return, which will keep them plump and happy. And rest assured that the lack of birds in your backyard is a good sign—a sign that nature is in balance, at least in terms of providing sufficient food for our wintering birds this season.

Intersection going under the knife lane, separated by a paved island, will be added to West Street on the southerly portion of the intersection.

Despite the improvements, the "level of service" of the intersection is not expected to increase from its current grading of a "D." Safety, however, will be greatly improved, according to Fred Douglas of the engineering firm of Vanesse & Associates.

Selectman Suzanne Sullivan was concerned that the plans do not address the difficulty of resident exiting onto West Street from Suncrest Avenue.

"We're looking at this, to some extent, as a beginning to a more long range plan," said Town Manager Michael Caira. "What we're hoping to do is talk further with Regency Place."

According to Caira, the town Department of Public Works (DPW) is planning to continue the sidewalks from Burger King up to Lucci's Plaza and the intersection of Lowell Street and Woburn Street.

"We endorse this project," said DPW Superintendent Donald Onusseit. "We think it's going to be a big improvement over what is there right now."

Onusseit some of the funds coming from the Regency Place development will pay to extend sidewalks further up West Street to Suncrest Avenue, and possibly to Industrial Way.

Carole Hamilton, Wilmington's Director of Planning & Conservation, also endorsed the project.

"We have been looking at these plans and tweaking them for a fair amount of time now," Hamilton said. "While it may not lift the level-of-service, one of the significant improvements is to safety."

Some work may begin before a winter imposed shut-down, but Onusseit expects the majority of the work to take place in the spring of 2007.

Home invasion

On September 30th, a home on Burlington Avenue was also burglarized while the occupants slept. In that case, the perpetrator gained access to the home through a "doggy door."

"These acts are blatant in that they are being done while the occupants are home," Neville said. "I don't recall that having ever occurred in this town before."

Police do have video of an, as yet, unidentified male using a credit card from the Burlington Avenue burglary at a Home Depot in Boston.

A number of housebreaks have also occurred during day-time hours while occupants are not at home, and police are urging residents to be vigilant about the goings on in their neighborhoods and to report anything suspicious.

"We continue to urge people to report suspicious activity, especially people that knock on their door or ring their doorbell without a reasonable explanation," Neville said.

One afternoon recently, for instance, an unknown male rang the doorbell of a Wilmington home in which a woman was alone. Not knowing the person at her door, the woman felt uncomfortable answering. Once the man had apparently felt satisfied that no one was home, he began to open the storm door, which prompted the woman to crack open the main door and ask what he wanted.

He stated that he was lost and asked for directions to Salem

Street. She gave him the directions and he was on his way. The woman did not feel that the incident was suspicious enough to report to police.

That same afternoon, the home right next door was burglarized.

"We are actively patrolling neighborhoods with marked and unmarked police vehicles,"

Neville said.

In addition to the home invasions on Quail Run and Burlington Avenue, multiple homes on West Street, Woburn Street, Burlington Avenue, Palmer Way, and Jordan have been burglarized.

Town Crier Sportswriters Louie Cimaglia and Mike Ippolito debate who is the greatest female athlete ever.

CIMAGLIA: Over the past 100 years women's sports have exploded. Many great stars have been produced in a variety of events. However, there is one woman that stands a little higher than the rest. Jackie-Joyner Kersee is the greatest female athlete of all time.

Kersee did more than put up stats – very impressive stats at that: three gold, one silver, two bronze medals in consecutive Olympic games – she brought young women to sports. Kersee's success in so many different Olympic events was so inspirational.

Mia Hamm was ten when Kersee was building her legend, and she said how all young girls at the time looked up to Kersee. I find that in any case, stats are never everything. Being able to grasp a demographic and inspire it is more powerful than anything that can show up in a box score.

IPPOLITO: Louie, while I certainly respect the achievements of Jackie-Joyner Kersee, I must also respectfully disagree with you. After all, just as you refer to Mia Hamm and girls of her generation looking up to Kersee, girls of a previous generation looked up to Babe Didrickson-Zaharias.

Babe was every bit the track star Kersee was, winning three gold medals, in the javelin, the 800 meter hurdles and the high jump, and also excelled in several other sports, including having a Hall of Fame career as an LPGA golfer where she won 35 tournaments including 17 straight at one point.

CIMAGLIA: Mike, I can certainly see where you're coming from with Babe. However, who was Babe playing in those golf tournaments? If I had to venture a guess, Annika Sorenstam and Michelle Wie weren't participating here.

It is impressive to be at the top of two sports at any given time, but Kersee was simply untouchable. And also, most girls at the time of Zaharias didn't necessarily look up to her, because she was so out of left field. Of course as history played out she was crucial to the development of women's sports.

But Kersee took the world by storm. She had a persona that radiated confidence. She was the face of women's sports.

IPPOLITO: You may have a point about the competition that Babe was facing. She was certainly part of a smaller group of female athletes. But to me that makes her accomplishments even more impressive in some ways.

Even without the constant competition pushing her, she continued to break her own record through her own tough minded self motivation.

If Babe were a man she would have been idolized by millions during her time for her ability to dominate her competition and maintain her focus. Instead she will just have to settle for not only being the face of women's sport during her time, but also for revolutionizing women's sports for generations to come.

CIMAGLIA: Mike, there is no question Babe revolutionized women's sports. I just think that Kersee re-revolutionized them. Maybe it wasn't fair for Babe to be in the time she was in, but Kersee certainly benefited from the fact that there were no major female stars in a time when people wanted a female star.

Also, there have been some women that are worth mentioning after Kersee. Hamm certainly helped bring soccer to prominence and had a huge influence on youth, including my generation. Lisa Fernandez, softball great, also put a great deal of interest into U.S. softball. They all followed Kersee's example and benefited greatly from it.

IPPOLITO: Kersee was great, no doubt, but I just don't think she was as much of an all-around athlete as Didrickson was, which is why I put her at the top.

Along with her track and golf exploits, she was also an accomplished basketball player and many claim that she got her nickname, Babe, because of the Babe Ruth like tape measure home runs she hit as a teenager while playing baseball.

I do agree, that as you said there are certainly arguments to be made for many others such as Billie Jean King or Martina Navratilova, while my wife for one and many others like her would go with Dorothy Hamill or Peggy Fleming for their impact on their sport.

I would personally vote for Kristi Yamaguchi if we're talking about figure skaters, but that's a different story. But the bottom line to me is that they all fall a distant second to the one and only Babe.

Wilmington resident Edwin Resic competes in Lowell

Little practice turns into a big marathon finish

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

You have probably heard the expression that practice makes perfect, or the very legitimate idea that you will become better at something by doing it several times. While both of these statements are certainly true to a degree, they do not necessarily apply to Wilmington resident Edwin Resic.

Resic, you see, did not need much practice at all in preparing for his first ever marathon, which he competed in on Sunday afternoon at the Bay State Marathon in Lowell. The 24-year-old trained for about a month in preparation for the biggest race of his life and rarely ran more than 10 miles at a time during his training, but he still managed to be the top area finisher in a time of 3:33:13, placing him 202nd overall.

Resic knows he is a little unique in his first time success, and he can also joke about his reason for beginning running not exactly being a story of inspiration. The good natured Resic was just looking for something to do.

"I did not quite follow a training routine," Resic said with a laugh. "I only recently began running. I thought it would be a good way to waste some of my energy."

Resic, who graduated from Lynn Classical High School in 2000 and moved to Wilmington with his family in 2001, obviously had energy to burn on Sunday, as he ran a race that any seasoned marathoner would be very proud of, getting out to a fast start and fighting through the aches and pains that cropped up later in the race on his way to a great finish he could be proud of.

"I feel like it is quite an accomplishment for me," Resic said. "I was very happy with my time and how things worked out, and I hope that in the future I will do even more training."

You might think that Resic had a strong background of cross country running or some other kind of track running in high school, but that is not the case, as he instead played soccer and tennis, certainly keeping himself in shape, but by no means preparing for a marathon.

"I did a little of everything," Resic said. "I was always looking to try new sports."

While Resic is not exactly sure that marathoning will become his new sport of choice, he did enjoy his first experience very much and not just because of the success he had. As Resic explained, the scenery and the supporters along the route made his effort worthwhile.

"I really enjoyed running over the bridges. That was my favorite part of the race," Resic Over 1,600 runners competed in the 18th Annual Bay State Marathon and Lowell Sun Half Marathon, and local runners were very well represented in the fields of both races.

In the marathon, the top local finisher was 24-year-old Edwin Resic of Wilmington who finished in a time of 3:33:13, good for 202nd overall in a field of 677 marathon runners, followed closely by Tewksbury's top finisher, Mike Doherty who completed the course in a time of 3:36:13.

Other Tewksbury residents who finished the race were 56-year-old John Morandi who finished in 3:38:49, which was good enough for 21st place in the 50-59 division, Adrienne Lefebvre, in 3:48:19, good enough for 21st place among women, Daniel Leary who finished in a time of 4:27:27 and Denis Illsley in a time of 4:35:31.

Along with Resic, the only other Wilmington finisher was 36-year-old Kevin Yetman in a time of 3:42:41.

In the half marathon, there were numerous local runners led by Steve Bagley of Tewksbury who finished 86th overall in a field of 946 runners, in a time of 1:35:35. The 52-year-old Bagley also finished fifth in the 50-59 age bracket. Scott Hughes, 31, of Tewksbury followed close behind in a time of 1:42:51.

The top Wilmington finisher was 31-year-old Holly Bedrosian in a time of 1:45:06. Bedrosian also finished 22nd out of 178 female runners.

KEVIN FLAHERTY

JV soccer player makes his road race debut

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

When looking at the success of Wilmington High School freshman Kevin Flaherty, one is tempted to say that he has a very bright future. But that would actually be slighting the 15-year-old a little bit, because to say he has a bright future would be ignoring the equally bright present.

Flaherty made his road racing debut over the weekend in the 5th Annual Paddy's Pub Shillelagh Shuffle, a three mile race in West Newton, and he started his career with a resounding success, finishing 86th overall out of 1,012 runners in a time of 20:22. The time was also good enough to place him sixth in the 15-19 age bracket and he was second among 15-year-olds.

While Flaherty was obviously happy with his results, he still feels like it could have been better.

"I was trying to go a little faster, but it was a good pace for me," Flaherty said. "I run a mile every day at soccer practice and I can usually run in about 5:40 or 5:50."

Flaherty found out about the race through a teammate of his Joe Warren, on the Wildcats JV soccer team. Warren told Flaherty a week or so ago that he would be running the race with his father Ken, who has had a very successful career running road races, including winning the Wilmington 275th Birthday half marathon last year.

Having somebody like the elder Warren to learn from was beneficial to Flaherty leading up to the race.

"He is a good influence for me. He gave me some good advice like don't shoot out of a cannon in the first mile, but to pace myself," Flaherty said. "Coming from him that is really good, because he is one of the best runners in Wilmington."

If Flaherty keeps up at the pace he started at in his first race, he may very well be referred to as one of the best runners in Wilmington as well.

His 20:23 put him within three minutes of Warren, who finished 25th overall in a time of 17:47. Joe Warren had a fine race as well, finishing 170th out of the 1,012 runners in a time of 21:55, good for third in his age division. Peter Warren, age 12, finished in a time of 26:00, good for 11th in the 1-14 age bracket.

"In a couple of weeks Joe and I will be running a 5K race in Lexington, so I hope to do even better there," Flaherty said. "In this race I was trying to learn how to race. Running with other people is a good strategy for me to keep at a good pace."

While some may have been surprised at how well Flaherty

Football team picks up fourth win of season

Generally speaking the Wildcats were better

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The week before the Masconomet Regional High School Football team snapped a six-year losing streak against the Wilmington High Wildcats. But on Friday night, the 'Cats were able to keep another streak going as not only did they dominate Hamilton-Wenham, but the Generals remain winless at Alumni Stadium, now 0-6 since Wilmington jumped to the Cape Ann League in the fall of 1995.

Senior running back Rich Barry keyed the win scoring all five of the team's touchdowns, while rushing for 198 yards. He scored a touchdown in the first quarter, before adding three more in the last 5:10 of the second quarter and ending his night with another TD run in the fourth quarter.

As good as Barry was on the night, so was the rest of the team. The offensive line was terrific, helping Wilmington total 302 total yards of offense including 235 on the ground. The defense came up with big plays, including Mike Larfarello and Ernie Mello both coming through recovering two Hamilton-Wenham turnovers which led to two of Barry's touchdowns.

With the victory, Wilmington is now 4-2 on the season and 4-1 in league play. The 'Cats have now outscored its opponents by a 2-to-1 margin at 160-80. This week Wilmington will host Triton Regional for its final league home game as the 'Cats travel to Ipswich, North Andover and Pentucket before coming home for the final time on Thanksgiving morning against Tewksbury.

"I'm very pleased with the kids performance tonight," said Wildcat head coach Bob Almeida. "I couldn't be more excited for a group of kids. It was a total team effort. We held them to 16 total yards in the first half. We've had our woes in the secondary and for us to hold them to just 16 yards in the first half I think was huge for us and that's a big performance for them. The defense set the tone but the offensive line and Richie kind of took over after that."

Almeida said that all week during practice, the coaching staff came up with a different plan on trying to shut down Hamilton-Wenham's strong armed quarterback Connor Sullivan. In the first half, Sullivan struggled completing just 3-of-10 passes for six yards, before completing three on the opening series of the third quarter leading the team to its only score.

"We made a good adjustment (with our pass defense after last week)," said Almeida. "We added a couple of different things and the kids picked it up and did a real nice job with it. (Assistant coach Mike Barry) was about to split a gasket over it and for him to put this scheme together and for the kids to pick it up like they did, I tip my hat off because I thought he did an unbelievable job."

"He's a very good quarterback and they have a great core of receivers. Number 80 (Mike) Drinkwater made me sick, he's that good and they also have a couple of real good slot receivers. Like I said that quarterback is very good and we were really concerned about him coming into the game. We thought we could shut down their run, but we were concerned with the pass."

Wilmington went three-and-out to start the game off, but the Generals' fumbled a carry on first down of its first offensive series. Larfarello came up with the recovery putting the ball on the Generals' 10 yard line. Three Barry carries later, and a Greg Stewart PAT kick put the 'Cats up 7-0.

The score stayed that way until midway through the second quarter. Mello intercepted a Sullivan pass and returned it to the line of scrimmage at the Generals' 33 yard line. One play later, Barry danced, darted away, cut and spined his way down the left sideline for a sensational 33-yard touchdown run. The kick failed and Wilmington had a 13-0 lead.

Hamilton-Wenham was forced to punt from its three yard on the ensuing series, and punt return specialist Greg Stewart's facemask was grabbed on the play which moved the ball up 15 yards to the Generals' 24 yard line. After an incomplete pass, Barry took the ball four times, including a 13-yard touchdown run making it 19-0 with 2:03 to go.

Wilmington High's Michael Enwright (#19) and Ryan Jones (#68) try to catch up with a Masconomet running back during the team's meeting two weeks ago at home. The Wildcats are now 4-2 on the season after beating Hamilton-Wenham on Friday night. (JoeBrownphotos.com)

But he wasn't done yet.

Again Hamilton-Wenham went three-and-out and again Stewart put the 'Cats in good field position just eight yards short of midfield. He then caught a 42-yard pass from his younger brother Steve Stewart putting the ball on the 16. Three plays later, Barry gave Wilmington a 25-0 halftime lead with his fourth touchdown of the first half, this one coming from three yards out.

Hamilton-Wenham did get on the scoreboard driving down the field on its opening drive of the third quarter. Sullivan connected on three pass plays in the drive which was capped off by a 2-yard run by Jake Cotter making it 25-7.

With less than two minutes to go in the third quarter, Wilmington started a 12-play, 51-yard drive - which included two penalties for a combined 25 yards - finished off by a 9-yard run by Barry making it 32-7 with 7:06 to go as the back-ups then had a chance to get some playing time.

Barry and the rest of the Wildcats will try to make it two wins a row when they host Triton on Friday with kick-off slated for 7:00 pm at Alumni Field.

The Vikings are currently 2-4 overall this season with a non-league win coming against North Shore Voc Tech (21-0) and the only league win coming against Newburyport (7-0). Triton has been defeated by North Reading (17-14), Ipswich (28-0), North Andover (14-9) and Amesbury (23-9), and outscored 82-39 against league opponents.

Scores five touchdowns and gains 198 yards

Barry's night rushes to top of the list

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

We were first introduced to Rich Barry two years ago. A sophomore at the time, he was very deep on the team's running back depth chart. With guys like Joe Herra, Robbie Gillis, Brian Giamberardino, Zack Mayo and Stephen Downs, Barry was penciled in basically in a reserve role.

Late September of that season, Barry started to get into a few games. He had three rushes against Lawrence, five more against Amesbury, before he erupted for two huge games against Newburyport and North Reading. He had a 147-yard performance with a touchdown in the win over the Clippers and followed that up with a two-touchdown, 142-yard performance against the Hornets.

But late in that game against North Reading, Barry was injured and sat out the rest of the season. Wilmington advanced to the playoffs that November, and with his impressive stats of 364 yards and 5 touchdowns, Barry had to watch his teammates fall to Hingham in the program's first playoff game since 1976.

Back healthy, Barry put together another few terrific games last season as a junior. He ended up with 517 rushing yards and seven touchdowns on the ground, as well as 75 yards and one score as a receiver. But again he missed a handful of games with various injuries.

Coming into this season 37 yards of 1,000 total offensive yards in his career and 13 touchdowns, Barry was elected one of the team's captains and obviously was looked upon as the team's top running back. He hasn't disappointed. In fact, what we all witnessed Friday night, was one for the ages.

Barry erupted for five touchdowns, including four in the first half and three in the second quarter, and rushed for 198 yards on the ground leading Wilmington to a 32-7 victory over Hamilton-Wenham in front of the home crowd.

He was nothing short of dazzling, spinning, shifting and powering his way through the Hamilton-Wenham defense. He scored touchdown runs of 1, 33, 13, 3 and 9 before coming out to let the sophomore back-ups take over with six minutes to go in the game.

"Richie was spectacular tonight," said Wilmington absolutely spectacular. He ran tonight like no one was better."

The introduction to Barry from two years ago was mentioned for a reason. After that 147-yard performance against Newburyport, Barry, then a sophomore, immediately praised all of the work that his offensive line did for him to create holes, as well as giving a lot of credit to the coaching staff for the plays called to him. Two years later, nothing has changed, when so many things could have considering his success.

"I just have to say that it was all the (offensive) line," he said. "Cory Groves stepped up in his first game at fullback

"Ryan Jones has been awesome (on the line)," he said. "He works so hard and just gives 110 percent everyday. I can't single out one kid because every single one of them was terrific."

On the season, Barry now has 717 yards on 110 carries, averaging 6.5 yards per carry, while he also has 11 touchdowns. All of this in just six games.

"That was just a phenomenal career performance by Richie," said Almeida. "(Current assistant coach and former Northeastern University player) Bobby French in my mind, we've never had a better running back and he was so impressed with Richie tonight,

Wilmington High senior running back Rich Barry, shown here during the team's loss two weeks ago, rushed for 198 yards and scored five touchdowns in the team's win over Hamilton-Wenham on Friday. (JoeBrownphotos.com)

Barry piling up the numbers

Wilmington High Senior running back Rich Barry had quite the performance on Friday night, rushing in five touchdowns while carrying the ball 31 times for 198 yards. Here's a look at his stats both this year and career.

This Season

vs Belmont: 20 carries, 127 yards vs Newburyport: 10 carries, 100 yards, 3 TDs vs Lawrence: 14 carries, 112 yards, 1 TD
vs Amesbury: 16 carries, 98 yards, 2 TDs vs Masconomet: 19 carries, 82 yards vs Hamilton-Wenham: 31 carries, 198 yards, 5 TDs

Career Statistics

2004: 34 carries, 364 yards, 5 touchdowns; 1 reception, 7 yards
2005: 48 carries, 517 yards, 7 touchdowns; 6 receptions, 75 yards, 1 TD.
2006 (to date): 110 carries, 717 yards, 11 touchdowns; 4 receptions, 38 yards.
Total: 192 carries, 1,598 yards (6.5 per carry), 23 touchdowns; 11 receptions, 120 yards, 1 TD.

coach Bob Almeida. "It was such a great team win. The defense set the tone for us with that fumble recovery, and then the offensive line and Richie did the rest. There were times when Richie got great blocking and he made a great run and there were times when he didn't get great blocking and he still made a great run. He was and we just got it done. We got out on the field and we got it done tonight."

Instead of the Terrell Owens 'I'm the greatest' speech, Barry's comments after the game were as refreshing as his performance. Right on the money, Barry was sharing the credit and enjoying the team victory.

just the way he ran the ball and I think that says it all."

And now we can re-introduce Rich Barry as a very humble, extremely good running back, who has now chalked up 1,598 rushing yards with 23 touchdowns, and 1,796 total yards of offense and 24 touchdowns in his very impressive career.

Gearing up for playoff run

Girls soccer team falls to powerful Lynnfield Pioneers

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Heading into Monday night's game, the Wilmington High girls soccer team were on a nice streak of 5-1-1 over the last seven games - including outscoring its opponents 18-7 - bringing the team's record up to one game under .500. While the 'Cats were playing much better, they were also beating teams that aren't nearly as talented.

Monday night's opponent, Lynnfield, came into the game with a 10-1-2 overall record, including a previous 5-1 victory over the 'Cats. The Pioneers started out 9-0-1 holding a 33-9 edge in scoring, before falling to Hamilton-Wenham, 2-1, and ending in a 2-2 tie with Masconomet in their last two games.

Lynnfield has built up quite the resume over the last handful of seasons, going very deep in the post season including winning a state championship. Since 2003, the Pioneers have won two Cape Ann League small school titles and have a combined 69-6-8 record, including Monday's 3-1 win over the 'Cats at Alumni Field.

"They played well," said Wilmington head coach Sue Hendee, referring to her Wildcats. "We gave up two restart goals which I wasn't happy about and we let down for a couple of seconds but besides that they did play well. Lynnfield's a team that will take advantage of that. They are a disciplined team. They are a good team. They are well skilled and they are tough.

They are tough in the air and I think in the second half we did a much better job putting the ball on the ground so we would have better control and we did.

"That was a good test because we have been beating teams that aren't up to our caliber of talent, so it's a good test."

Wilmington got on the scoreboard very quickly just a few minutes into the game as senior Brianne Bozzella headed in a corner kick taken by Taryn Martinello. Lynnfield tied the game up less than ten minutes later and the score remained tied at the halftime break.

Wilmington came out very strong in the first 10 to 15 minutes of the second half with many chances to score. Martinello had the best bid as she dribbled through some open space and put on a rocket shot which was headed to the top right hand corner. Lynnfield's goalie Deanna LeBlanc went diving to her left and was able to knock the ball away with her fingertips to make a magnificent save.

Wilmington had several other good bids including a nice play by Samantha Canning, coming down the right wing and crossing a shot which LeBlanc caught, while, Wilmington also couldn't finish on an indirect kick taken to the left of LeBlanc.

Shortly after that indirect kick and again after Canning's chance, Lynnfield scored making it 2-1 with 32 minutes to go in the game and 3-1 with 26 minutes left in the game. Wilmington did have one other pretty good scoring chance as Colleen Kennedy had a chip shot which LeBlanc also was able to scoop up.

Last Thursday, Wilmington shut out Manchester-Essex, 5-0. Bozzella led the way with three of the team's goals, while Charlotte Jensen also had multiple points as she assisted on two goals. Katelyn Maggio, who continues to play very well, and freshman Julie Braid scored the other two goals. Canning and Martinello had single helpers each. Leah Potner and Jackie Zarembo combined for the shut out in the net.

Wilmington was back in action on Wednesday against Rockport (3-8-2) with results not known as of presstime. The Wildcats follow that up with another road game against Amesbury (4-9-1) on Tuesday before coming home Tuesday afternoon to face Triton Regional (3-6-3) at the Shawsheen Elementary School. Wilmington then closes out the regular season with games against Georgetown (4-2-6) and Tewksbury (5-3-3).

Facing three teams with losing records and five teams with a combined record of 19-28-15, Hendee feels that her team should not only qualify for the Division 2 North sectional tournament once again, but get a pretty decent seed.

"I just told (the team) that I expect them to finish 10-7-1," she said. "I really feel confident that we should end the season that way (with five straight wins)."

Wilmington High senior Leah DelRossi was very busy for the Wildcats girls soccer team in a recent Cape Ann League game against North Reading as she above goes for a loose ball and below chases after a Hornets player who has the ball. DelRossi and the rest of the Wildcats are now 5-7-1 overall and need seven points in their last five games to qualify for the state tournament.

Volleyball team falls to 1-12 on season

Struggles continue on the court

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

After having a lot of success over the years whether it's been executing designed plays to lead to points, winning many matches or making deep runs in the state tournament, this season has been the complete opposite for the Wilmington High School girls volleyball team.

On Monday the 'Cats were dropped in three straight matches to a decent Hamilton-Wenham team by scores of 25-13, 25-21 and 25-13. In the first game of the season, Hamilton-Wenham barely beat Wilmington, three games to two.

There were times on Monday afternoon that Wilmington played well and seemed to be putting things together. But there were other times where it looked like Wilmington had never seen a volleyball court before.

"I don't think they are giving up at all," said coach Mark Staffier. "I just think they get pushed back and they don't know how to react to it. It's probably (lack of) experience. But I know (senior captain) Ashley Vitale rolled her ankle during Friday's game and I talked to her over the weekend and she said 'I'm ready to play on Monday'. We need more of that. It breaks my heart because Ashley is out there killing herself and the rest of the girls can't roll one over for her. It's one of those things that really eats me up."

Wilmington is now 1-12 on the season, with the lone win coming against a winless Burlington team. Of the 13 matches the 'Cats have played, Monday marked the sixth time the team has been swept in three matches with the others against North Reading, Lynnfield, North Andover, Masconomet and Lexington. Of the team's 13 matches, Wilmington has won just ten sets and have lost 46.

Wilmington has seven matches left on the schedule, coming against five they have previously lost too including North Reading, Lynnfield, North Andover, Masconomet and Tewksbury. Wilmington then closes the season with two straight against Reading.

"We've played well at times," said Staffier. "Our first games against Melrose and Haverhill we beat them, and then it seems like we go in cruise control the rest of the way. Well it doesn't work that way."

In the second game of Monday's match against Hamilton-Wenham, the 'Cats rallied back from deficits four times to tie the game up before taking a brief 18-17 lead after three straight service points from Erin Copeland. Hamilton-Wenham scored the next four points to take a 21-18 and again Wilmington came back making it 22-21 but HW ended the game with three straight points.

"I think a lot of it has to do with (lack of) experience," said Staffier. "I just don't think the girls have been in pressure situations before. We come out strong in a lot of games but when the other team starts to come on, we back off and we fold because we don't have that playing experience to deal with that situation."

'Cats streak comes to an end

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Before meeting up with North Reading a few weeks ago, Wilmington High boys soccer coach Steve Scanlon said he had a feeling before the game that his team would prevail, as the Hornets had been unscored upon at that time.

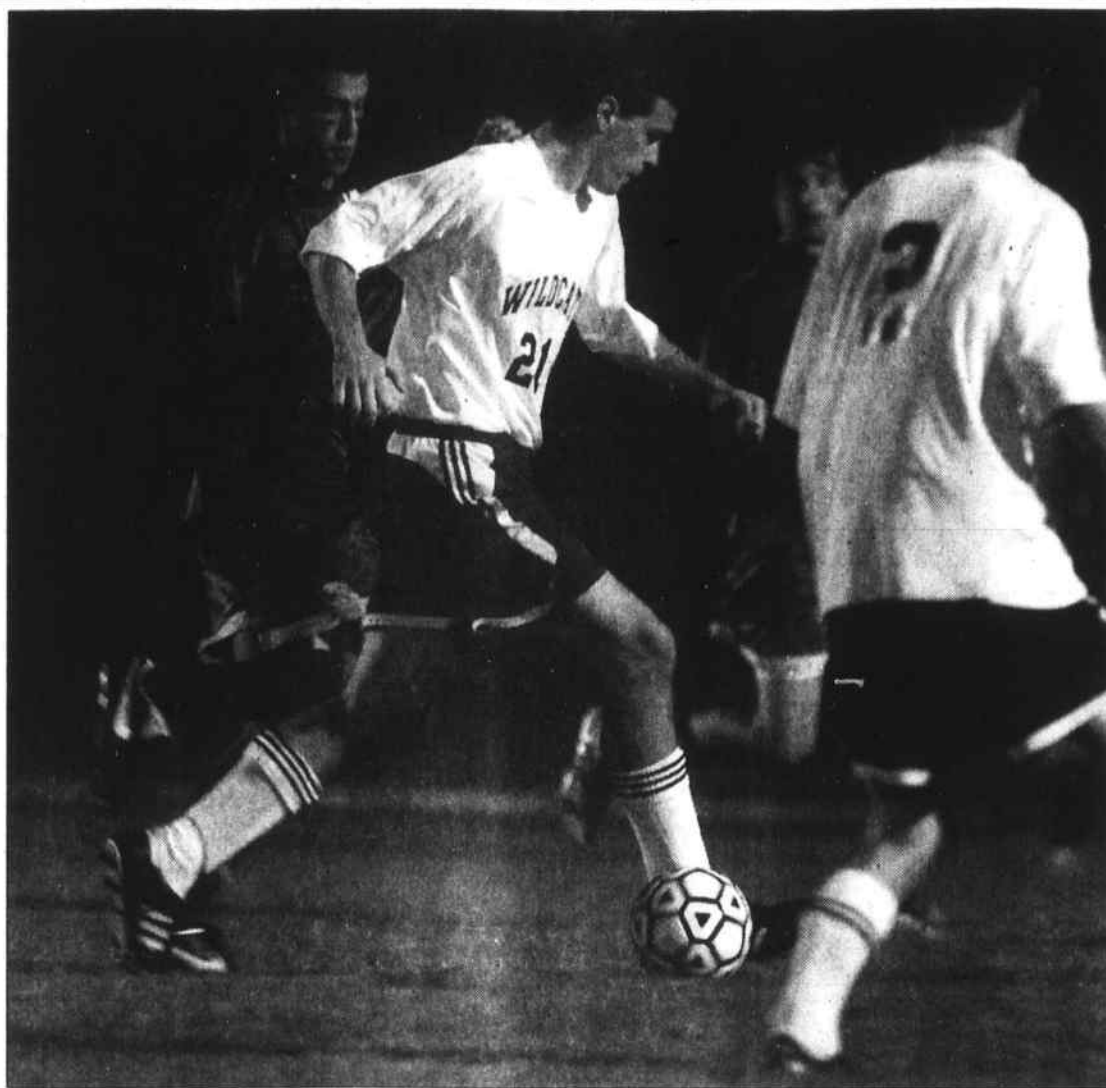

On Monday night, his Wildcats team came into the contest with a 7-0-1 record in its last eight games and Scanlon seemed concerned that perhaps his players or the team in general were getting a little too involved with the streak.

And just three minutes in to the Cape Ann League game, Lynnfield's Mark Kennedy found the back of the net and that was enough to give the visiting Pioneers a 1-0 win over the 'Cats under the lights at Alumni Field.

"I think we were a little complacent," said Scanlon. "We were due (to lose). You could see some of that creeping in.

Wilmington Recreation Basketball registration

The deadline for registration for Rec. Basketball is Friday, October 20, 2006. This program for students in grades 3 - 10, includes ten Saturday games, and one weeknight practice each week. The season begins December 2, 2006 and runs

(Last Thursday's) game against Manchester, you see kids counting up their points and everyone wanted to take (the ball) and do it themselves."

With the loss, the 'Cats are now 7-4-1 overall and 6-2-1 within the league's play.

"We were asleep in the first three minutes of the game and it cost us," said Scanlon. "We run into a pure goal scorer (in Kennedy) and he doesn't need a couple of chances to score. We didn't give him too many chances tonight but he did get one chance and he put it home. We were asleep at the wheel in the first three minutes but after that we played well."

Wilmington didn't have many real good scoring bids throughout holding the edge in possession and shots. The best chance came early in the second half when Jonathon Spurr made a nice cross pass from the right wing to the far left post and Chris Azevedo's shot was knocked down by the Pioneer keeper.

"If you look at the shot chart, we took 20 shots but only six landed on the net," said Scanlon. "We really didn't test him at all. But hey Lynnfield's a good team but I thought we outplayed them but we didn't finish."

Last Thursday, Wilmington defeated Manchester-Essex, 3-1 as Matt Figueiredo scored all three goals, while Mike Condell and Nick Robarge had one assist each. Jesse Belding and Spurr also played well in front of keeper Vinny Papageorgiou, who turned away all four saves to record the shut out.

Wilmington still needs three more points to qualify for the Division 2 state tournament and it seems very likely that should happen since the 'Cats close out the regular season facing five teams, all with losing records. Wilmington will host Rockport (5-8-0), Amesbury (0-12-2), Georgetown (4-5-2) and Tewksbury (0-12-1) and have just one road game left against Triton (5-6-2).

Eighth grader Spry leads girls charge

By JAMIE POTE

The incredible improvement from not only the individual runners, but for the entire Wilmington High School girls cross country team has continued. This past Wednesday, the girls split in a tri-meet, beating Lynnfield, 21-38, and falling to Cape Ann League power and state championship contender Hamilton-Wenham, 17-44.

With the win and a loss, the girls team now stands at 4-5 overall which is remarkable considering 15 of the team's 18 runners are from seventh grade to sophomores. The Wildcats stand in sixth place in the league standings, which says so much considering the team struggled in the past few years always finishing at the bottom of the league.

Among the big highlights in the meet came from eighth grader Kerri Spry, who according to head coach Tom Bradley, finished with the third fastest time out of any female runner in the past three years. She came across at 21:02 for the 3.1 mile trek. Her finish was good for sixth place overall in the tri-meet, as Hamilton-Wenham (10-0) had the first four runners come across, followed by Wilmington sophomore Natalie Russo, who was fifth with a time of 20:32.

Right behind Spry came Nikki Sirignano, who was third for Wilmington coming in at 22:04 which is a minute faster than her previous best time. Ali Lyman also finished with a personal best at 22:15, and Lori

Rams knock off North Shore Voc

Foley's interception leads Shawsheen to big victory

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

MIDDLETON - During the middle of Saturday's Commonwealth Athletic Conference game against North Shore Tech, both teams were penalized for unsportsmanlike penalties. A North Shore fan yelled towards the Shawsheen Tech bench "hey, what you guys have to cheat?"

When the final whistle blew and the two teams greeted one another at midfield with admiration handshakes, there was nothing close to cheating. The Rams relied on character, a strong running game, and a huge defensive stand in the final minute of the game to hold off the Bulldogs, 21-14.

Pat Fullerton and Chris Clark combined for 157 rushing yards and each scored a touchdown, while, Tewksbury's Stephen Foley intercepted a pass in the end zone with 24 seconds left in the game to help push the Rams to their fifth straight victory.

The game started out vastly in favor of the Rams, but the visiting team could never put the Bulldogs away. Instead, there were plenty of halfback option passes, not to mention a 12-yard loss on a punt, a second miscue on a punt, and two teams smashing each other into wits as the game featured nothing but good old fashion schoolboy pigskin hits and action.

"It was a great game," said Shawsheen coach Al Costabile. "A great game. It tested the will out of both sides. Both sides had to dig out of holes and we were able to dig out of the last one."

Shawsheen took an early lead scoring just 2:40 into the game after holding North Shore to a three-and-out series. But on fourth down, the Bulldogs went to punt. The snap was bobbled and Colby Boulay rushed to get the kick off which shanked off the side of his foot, landed just a few feet to his right before it bounced 12 yards behind the line of scrimmage. Three plays later, Shawsheen's Pat Fullerton lugged the ball 9 yards up the middle giving the Rams a 7-0 lead after Ryan McLaughlin's PAT kick was good.

Both teams failed to convert on each of their next two possessions - including Shawsheen missing a 22-yard field goal try - and North Shore had the ball on first down at the Rams 41 yard line less than a minute into the second quarter. Boulay then took his three steps back and connected down the left sideline to receiver Moses Jimenez for a 41-yard touchdown strike. The conversion rush failed and the Rams led 7-6 which stood at the halftime break.

Shawsheen's offense continued to struggle with another three-and-out series to begin the third quarter. North Shore countered with a long, 17-play, 63-yard drive that took up 8:49 on the scoreboard. It was capped off when Boulay tossed a 24-yard beauty down the left sideline for Argenis Gomez. Boulay ran in the conversion and the Bulldogs led 14-7 with 30 seconds left in the third quarter.

The Rams came back with a huge score of their own on a terrific play. Facing third-and-seven from the North Shore 45, Rams quarterback Joe Gore tossed a high ball down the right sideline. Receiver Joe Killion was covered nicely, but he won the battle leaping higher to grab the ball around the 12 yard line before going in untouched for the 45-yard touchdown coming with 9:10 left in the game. McLaughlin's kick was good and the game was tied, 14-14.

Shawsheen continued to carry the momentum as its defense came up big. North Shore needed a yard on fourth-and-1 at its own 39, but didn't get that as the defensive line stopped Boulay on a run up the gut giving the Rams offense a chance to get on the field and do its thing. That's exactly what happened. After a five-yard penalty, Fullerton took the ball three times for a combined 39 yards moving the ball to the 6. That's when Clark took the next carry in for the game winning touchdown making it 21-14 after the conversion kick with 4:51 to go in the game.

North Shore then had one final chance to come back. The Bulldogs started its final drive on their own 29. On the first play from scrimmage, Boulay darted to his right and advanced 33 yards up the field before being tackled at the Rams 38. Three plays later, Boulay's halfback option pass was complete to Jimenez for another 33-yard gain and the ball was planted on the Rams 6 yard line with just over two minutes to go.

After two small gains on running plays, the Bulldogs faced third down from the three yard line. Boulay was stuffed on his carry setting up fourth down from the three and 24 seconds remaining. This time Boulay tried the halfback option pass again but it was intercepted by Foley in the end zone.

Gore took a knee and the game clock expired with the "cheating" Rams celebrating a tremendously hard earned victory.

"We just played powerful football," said Costabile. "Joe Killion made a huge catch on a well timed ball. Joe Gore put the ball exactly where it needed to be caught and Joe Killion, being the basketball player he is, went up and got the ball. I thought both Pat Fullerton and Chris Clark ran the ball extremely well."

"I thought the defense came up big. When their backs were against the wall, they came up with big plays when they needed too. We tackled a lot better in the second half than we did in the first half."

Shawsheen returns home on Saturday on homecoming day to face Lynn Tech beginning at 1:30 pm

Rams will roll the dice to get a six

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech football team will attempt to run their wining streak to six games on Saturday afternoon when they host CAC Large rival Lynn Tech at 1:30 at Samuel J. Cassidy Field on Homecoming Day at Shawsheen.

The Rams will bring a 5-1 record into the game, having won five straight after a season opening loss to Arlington Catholic. The Rams most recent win came last Saturday afternoon with a thrilling 21-14 victory over North Shore.

Lynn Tech will bring just a 1-4 record into the contest with their most recent loss coming to Greater Lowell last week by a score of 13-0. But as the Rams learned the hard way last year, they cannot take the Tigers lightly regardless of their record.

Last season the Rams were on a roll when they marched into Lynn, holding the same 5-1 record they hold this season, only to be dominated by the Tigers on their way to a 32-22 loss.

The Rams have been brilliant running the ball this season, as they were last year, but last season the Rams running game was shut down as Kyle Marzeotti gained only 67 yards on the ground and Pat Fullerton was held to just 59.

Lynn Tech will be led on offense by the running combination of seniors Jose Fernandez and Chaz Cole. Fernandez has scored two touchdowns this season, including one on a 96 yard run in a 39-16 loss to Blue Hills, while Cole has also run for a pair of scores. The Tigers have also gotten scoring runs this season from John Jones and Jose Rios.

Lynn Tech's lone win this season came in a 30-6 rout of Minuteman Regional. That win featured not only touchdown runs by Cole and Rios, but also an 80 yard interception return for a touchdown by Charles Mackenson.

Shawsheen Tech Round-Up

Girls soccer team nets 11th win

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech girls soccer team has played well all season long and this past week was no exception as two more victories improved their record to 11-3 overall and 9-2 in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference. The Lady Rams, who have now won six games in a row, have already salted away a berth in the state tournament, but they still have several attainable goals within their reach.

With each win of course, Shawsheen moves closer to guaranteeing themselves a higher seed and a potential home game in the tournament, but they are also well within reach of a league championship, where they trail Greater Lowell by only one game, as well as a berth in the State Vocational Tournament.

"We are happy to have the tournament clinched, but going into the year I was not too worried about that since they have always seemed to qualify in the past," first year coach Doug Michaud said. "But we would definitely like to get a higher seed."

The Lady Rams took a pair of good steps toward both the higher seed as well as the voke tournament with their wins this week. Most recently they defeated a tough Northeast Regional team, 2-0 on Monday afternoon in a home game. It was the Lady Rams second

2-0 win over Northeast this season.

"Northeast played a great game today," Michaud said. "They really battled us. They had played Greater Lowell recently and played very well, but lost a close game to them."

Freshman Jenna Zechner scored the first Shawsheen goal midway through the first half on an assist from Katie Giordano and Heather Masses added the insurance goal midway through the second half on an assist from team leading scorer, senior captain Kayla O'Leary.

Junior goalie Kim Stockton made eight saves for the Lady Rams, including one on a penalty shot for her sixth shutout of the season.

Prior to Monday, the Lady Rams had traveled to Methuen last Friday to take on Presentation of Mary Academy. In two previous games against PMA this year, the Lady Rams had won by scores of 8-0 and 5-0, but Friday was much different as Shawsheen really had to battle to get the win, coming away with a 3-2 victory.

"After the Greater Lowell game (a 4-3 victory last Wednesday) I gave them a day off because they had just had two heavy games in a row so it was kind of a celebration," Michaud said. "I don't think we were ready to play on Friday and when we got there PMA was all fired up and going through drills before the game."

We did not have the right mind set and PMA played a great game."

Shawsheen found themselves in a 2-2 tie at halftime, before Michaud made some adjustments, moving players back to their regular positions and the Lady Rams dominated territorial play from there on with Zechner scoring the winning goal early in the half and Shawsheen hitting several posts and cross bars throughout the half.

"It was my fault too that we got off to a slow start," Michaud said. "I had mixed things up a little, moving some of our defense up to forward. I did not realize how much they meant to us on defense, so at halftime I switched it back."

Freshman Jenn Carroll of Wilmington scored two goals and assisted on another, giving her 15 goals on the season.

"Jenn is 'stepping it up,'" Michaud said. "She's become a scoring machine. So much so that sometimes I don't even realize she is scoring all of these goals."

Stockton made 10 saves to earn the victory.

Rams Boys Soccer team still looking to clinch tourney spot

ing four straight games. But better times appear to be on the horizon for the Rams, as they will move back into their CAC Lower Division schedule after playing two of their last three games against Upper Division teams and having their one Lower Division game be on the road at league leader Lynn Tech.

The Rams have actually not played badly during this stretch. With the exception of Friday's 5-1 loss to Tyngsboro, the Rams had a chance to win each of the games, falling by a score of 3-1 to Lynn Tech last Tuesday and 3-2 to an undefeated Chelsea squad on October 6.

"With the exception of Tyngsboro we have been in all the games," Shawsheen coach Dick Barris said. "We really should have beaten Chelsea. We were up 1-0 with 24 minutes to go and up 2-1 with ten minutes to go and tied with six minutes to go. The new hit the ball into our own net with four minutes to go."

That loss was huge for the Rams as even a tie against an Upper Division team would have vaulted them ahead of Lynn Tech in the Lower Division. As it turned out, the game last Tuesday at Lynn Tech had a great bearing on the Lower Division standings and Lynn Tech came out on top.

"I would have gladly walked off that field with a 0-0 tie, especially since we had some players out due to injury," Barris said. "I would have been ecstatic with that and that's what the score was at halftime, but they scored a couple of nice goals in the second half to get the win."

Rams leading scorer Brian Conway, the team's leading scorer, scored the Rams only goal of the game, while sophomore Mike LaMonica made an incredible 18 saves in goal.

LaMonica, in his first year as a varsity goalie has been outstanding all season long.

"I was looking at the stats before our tenth game and he had allowed only 19 goals all season," Barris said. "And of those five were penalty kicks and three we scored against ourselves, so he was really allowing about a goal per game."

With four losses in a row, Barris knows it is important for the Rams to keep their heads up and not lose confidence in themselves.

"The kids are trying really hard, but honestly it's a struggle right now to stay confident," Barris said. "We were 6-1-1 and with the games we felt we could have won we could have been 8-1-1, but now we are 6-5-1 instead. So it is tough for the kids to feel very good right now, but I think they can bounce back."

Barris is not taking anybody on the Rams schedule lightly, but the facts are that the Rams have six games left on their schedule and four of them are against Lower Division teams that are not Lynn Tech and a pair are against non-league rival Lowell Catholic. That certainly looks much more promising than their previous four games.

"Without a doubt we will be a little more comfortable," Barris said. "We should be able to compete with everybody else. Do I think we can go 6-0? Probably not, but it is not impossible. But I do think we need to go 5-1 if we want to get a decent seed in the tournament so every game is very important."

Cross Country

The boys and girls cross country teams at Shawsheen both wrapped up their season in impressive fashion last Wednesday afternoon in a home tri-meet against CAC rivals Greater Lowell and Mystic Valley.

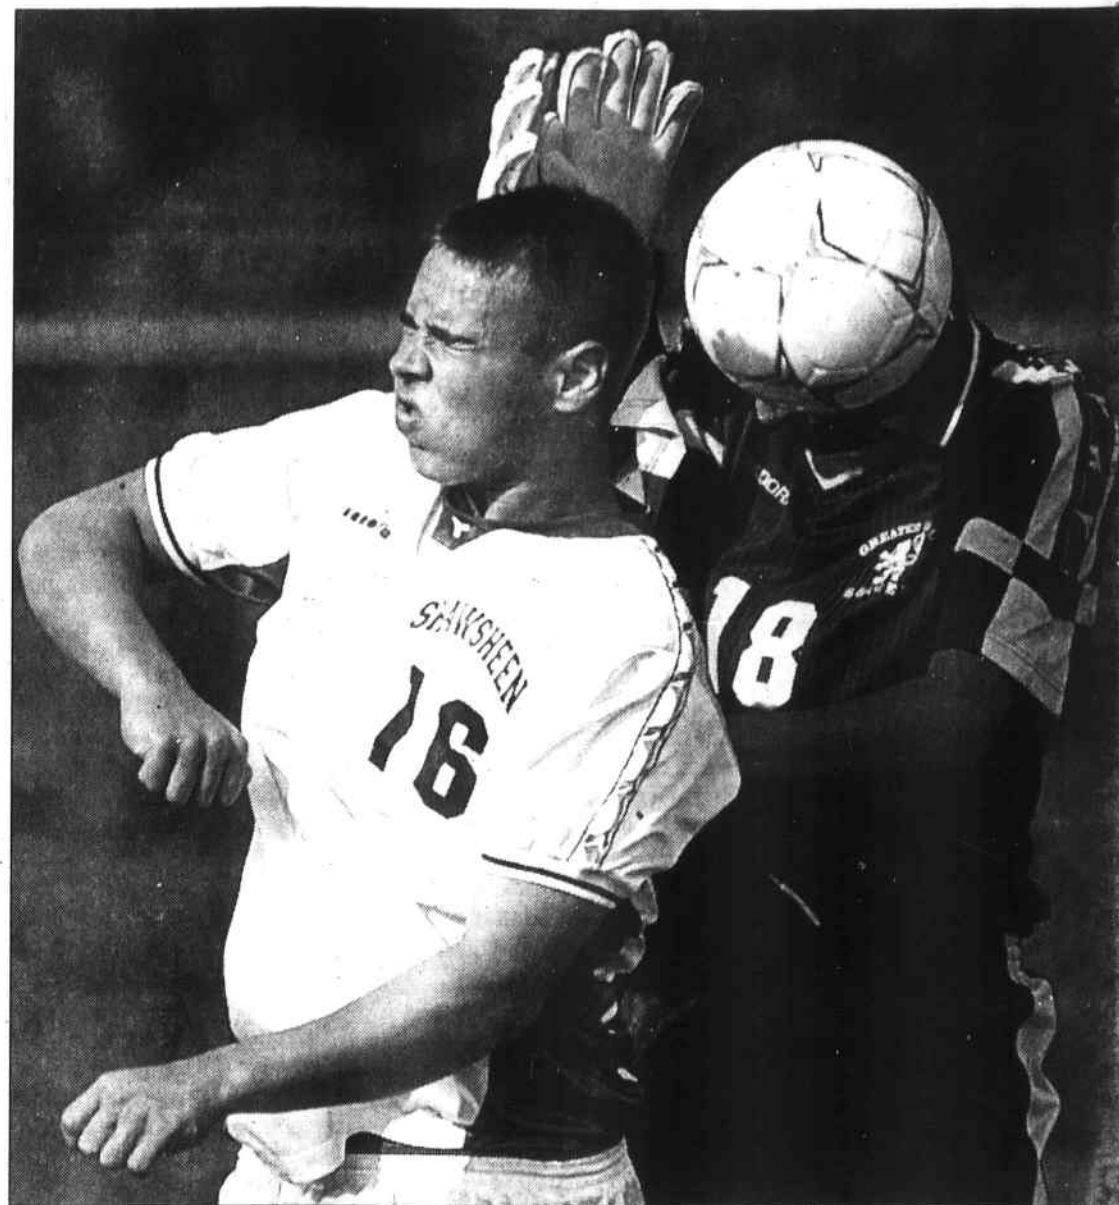

Both the boys and the girls pulled off impressive and dramatic wins over Greater Lowell by identical 27-28 scores. Meanwhile the boys routed Mystic Valley by a score of 15-40, while the girls won 15-50 when Mystic Valley did not have enough runners to qualify for scoring.

The boys wrapped up their regular season with a record of 7-1, while the girls finished at 6-2. Both were preparing to wrap up their season this Wednesday in the CAC League Championship Meet at Essex Aggie in Danvers.

On the boys side, Greater Lowell actually took the top two spots, but Shawsheen took the next four spots, showing the depth that has made them so successful this season. Wilmington sophomore Josh Weaver took third overall and was the top Rams finisher in a time of 19:01 over the three mile course, with senior Matt Bruno returning from injury to finish in a time of 19:13 for fourth place overall.

Junior Chris Damp of Tewksbury was the third Ram finisher and took fifth overall in a time of 19:15, while freshman Bjorn Hanson was next in a time of 19:19.

After Greater Lowell took the next two spots (7th and 8th overall), the Rams again scored when junior Nick Illsley took ninth overall and fifth for the Rams in a time of 20:04, followed closely by sophomore Travis Craigie in 20:10. Senior captain Dan Metcalfe finished in an impressive 21:06.

On the girls side, freshman Abby Pinard of Tewksbury led the way as she has for the entire season, winning the race in a time of 23:19, once again improving her personal best, and finishing with the best time of any Lady Ram this season.

Kristina Zaccini was the second Shawsheen finisher and took fifth overall in a time of 24:51, while junior Amanda Beatrice of Tewksbury was right behind her in a time of 24:54.

The girls scoring was wrapped up junior April Menezes who took 10th overall in a time of 26:38, and some critical points from junior co-captain Kaitlin Robinson of Tewksbury in 27:59.

Wilmington Pop Warner Football Round-Up

E Blue

The Wilmington E-Blue football team continued its great play on Sunday morning in a back-and-forth battle against Woburn. Including last week's fine performance against Burlington, the young 'Cats are reaching their potential as a team.

The Woburn game got off to a great start for Wilmington when Brian Neal returned the opening kickoff 60 yards for a touchdown. Matthew Woods ran in the extra point. However, the 'Cats found out that they were in for a tough game when Woburn responded by returning the next kickoff for a touchdown and kicking the extra point.

With the game off to an exciting start, the Wildcat offense moved quickly into Woburn territory on their first possession. During the drive, the 'Cats lined up with Tim Benoit at quarterback, Neal and Scott Newton in the backfield, Woods, Jeremy Frost, Jack Sweeney, Jack Stanford, Joe Hydorn, Jack Bertolami, Tyler DeJesus, and Nick Haddad on the line and Connor Robinson and Charlie Minghella at the ends.

Woods moved to fullback and had a first-down run that helped set up a 17-yard touchdown run by Neal.

Not to be outdone by the special teams and offense, the Wilmington defense continued to finish its tackles and hold strong when it matters most. In addition to Woods, Frost, Neal, Benoit, Newton, Haddad, Bertolami and Robinson, Chance Harper, Robert Peterson, Brendan Daly, Fox Maxwell, Connor Bailey and Mason Ouelette combined to stop Woburn on its next possession. Benoit, Neal and Woods made key tackles as the defense forced Woburn to turn the ball over on downs.

Wilmington would have a 60-yard touchdown run by Neal called back because of a penalty, but that didn't stop them for long. After Woburn again fought back by scoring a touchdown, the 'Cats put together an impressive 60-yard scoring drive. Woods and Newton ran for first downs and Benoit passed to Hydorn for another first down. Neal took it the rest of the way on a 15-yard touchdown run.

The defense again gave the ball back to the offense on downs when DeJesus made a third-down tackle and the 'Cats gang-tackled a Woburn back on fourth down. Taking over at their own 45-yard line, Neal capped a spectacular day by taking it to the house on a 55-yard touchdown run for his fourth score of the game. Woods powered his way into the end zone with the help of his offensive line for the extra point.

Woburn would add a touchdown on the last play of the game. Earlier in the possession, Wilmington had touchdown-saving tackles by Hydorn and Neal, and a stop in the backfield by Newton.

The progress made by the E-Blue Wildcats in recent weeks is a result of their consistent effort throughout the year and the hard work of head coach Sean Lord and his assistants Vern Hydorn, Sean Benoit and Dan Sprague. Sunday's game was the last at home for Wilmington this season. They hit the road next Sunday to play at Wakefield with an 8:00 am kickoff.

C Team

The Wilmington Pop Warner C team took to the field again this Sunday morning for what would turn out to be another victory for the boys in blue. Wilmington captains Brendan Ahern, Ryan Cocca, Dan Pendenza and Chris Newton took to the field for the coin toss.

Wilmington won the toss and elected to receive. The kick off team took their places and got ready to get the game underway. The kick off was recovered by Jake Flaherty and he ran for about 10 yards before being tackled. Unfortunately for the 'Cats the ball was fumbled on the play and Woburn took over.

The Blue defense came on to do their stuff and prevent Woburn from advancing the ball. The front line of Chris Newton, Tyler MacInnis and Dylan Champey did their job and prevented any penetration of Woburn up the middle.

On the next play Woburn tried to swing to the right but was met with a crushing tackle by Brian Priem and Tyler Vibert. On third down Woburn decided to try their luck by running to the left but was once again met by the wall-like defense of James Wilkinson and Johnny Spears. Fourth down came and went with no advancement by Woburn.

Wilmington took over possession. Brendan Ahern was in at center and Anthony Scurto was in at quarterback. The red offense was in the driver's seat now. The first play was a hand off from Scurto to Jake where he gained a few yards on the play thanks to the fantastic blocking by Eric Masiello, Dan Pendenza and Jason Baldwin. The next to carry the ball was Blake Walker. Blake was able to run up the right side of the field due to the superb blocking skills of Dylan and Tim Hunt.

It was now third down and Wilmington was ready to make their move. Ryan Cocca and Eric along with Brendan gave Anthony the protection and time he needed to set and look down field. There he saw Johnny in between two Woburn defenders. Anthony cocked his arm back and keeping his focus on Johnny hit him dead on. Johnny then finished off the play by running safely into the end zone.

Blake came in for the point after. His kick ricocheted off the post and went through the uprights-it was good!! Wilmington was now on the board 8-0.

The end of the second quarter was upon us and at half time the score was 8-0 in favor of the Wildcats.

The start of the third quarter began Brian stopping the Woburn return player in his tracks after he gained only a couple of yards. The defense came on again. This time the line backers, Sam Borseti and Ryan C. made sure nothing got by them. Mike Clark and Brian Colton came on and provided rock solid line work giving Sam, Jake, Blake and James plenty of running room. Mike Colton and Ryan Sweeney show the crowd their talent by dishing out some bone crunching tackles and blocks. Eli Jennings and Brian continued the shut down of the Woburn defense time and again.

After gaining yard after yard and making their way down into Woburn territory, Wilmington decided it was time to add to their score. Nick Barbarossa and Ryan S. made sure nothing got in the way as Anthony held onto the ball and scooted across the goal line with the help of his team mates Brian C. and Michael Callahan. Blake again saw to it that the point after was a good one.

The score was now 16-0 in favor of the 'Cats. Woburn now had their last possession. Ty V. made a fantastic tackle for a loss of Woburn yards. Dylan, Tyler M. and Chris continued to make sure Woburn had to work for each and every inch they got. Woburn tried their luck at some passes but one was broken up by Johnny and another by Sam B.

Wilmington now had the ball again. Nick, Tim, Jason and Dan gave great protection the their quarterback and James and Jake had a couple more decent runs. Ryan S. and Michael Colton, Michael Callahan and Eli played executed their positions perfectly and because of this the Cats continues to advance down the field.

The time quickly came to an end and because of the boys great defense and heads up offense the team left the field victorious.

Thanks again to our coaching staff Mike Scurto, Steve Borseti, Joe Flaherty, Glen Macinnis and Bill Walker for their time and dedication to the boys. Kudos to friends and families for coming out to cheer this great group of kids on. Thanks C team cheerleaders for all your energy and spirit.

A Team

The Wilmington Wilcat A-Team had a tough game on Sunday at Glen Road against Woburn, falling 11-0. The Wildcats put up a battle and played hard as Woburn kicked off to Wilmington. Matt

McKenna received the ball and did a return reverse to Derek Duggan for 20 yard run.

The Blue Offense Line (Derek Duggan, Cody Nilson, Jimmy Welch, Nick Powers, John Parsons, Mike Smith, opened the wide holes to allow Derek Queen to move the ball down the field.

Woburn was stone-walled by Nick Powers, Derek Queen, Cody Nilson, Mike Smith, and Derek Duggan. Cam Babine, Ryan Maskell, James Perry, and Jimmy Welch gang tackled Woburn.

The snap by center, Killian Smith to quarterback, Matt McKenna passed off a smooth transition to Running Back, Derek Queen. The Offense Line (Sean Woodbury, Sean Adams, Christian Houde, John Anderson, Sean Cavanaugh, James Perry, John Parsons) did a tremendous job blocking Woburn's Defense to allow Derek Queen to run up the middle picking up another first down.

The first half ended with Woburn kicking a field goal from the 35 yard line and puts a score on the board.

The second half of the game proved to be a challenge for the Wildcats with John Parsons in the backfield and solid gang tackle by Derek Queen, Nick Powers, and John Parsons, Sean Woodbury, Shawn Adams, Christian Houde, Jimmy Welch and Cam Babine.

Defense Line (John Parsons, Jimmy Welch, Cody Nilson, Ryan Maskell, Derek Duggan, James Perry, Scott Layton) made hard hitting tackles. Short and precise passes from Matt McKenna to Derek Duggan and Nate Downs moved the Wildcats up the field for another firstdown. But the Wildcats struggled to get the ball in the end zone.

The Wildcats respectfully held their heads high as they watched Woburn take a knee to allow the clock to run out.

Thank you to the coach and assistant coaches who dedicate their time to this team helping them gain endurance as they prepare to face Wakefield on Sunday.

Special thanks to Jerry Smith for his side line photography. Your photos are so appreciated.

Albert F. Reidy, Jr. Award to Youth Hockey

The Board of Directors of Investment In Youth Foundation unanimously voted approval for a $10,000 Albert F. Reidy, Jr. Award to Wilmington Youth Hockey at the September Meeting of the Foundation board. Wilmington Youth Hockey, a 501 (c) (3) non profit corporation, qualified in all areas required in the award proposal. Investment In Youth Foundation was formerly known as Wilmington Arena Authority Inc. and was the managing entity of Elinor M. Ristuccia Memorial Arena in Wilmington from November, 1986 through May, 2005. During those years, under the direction of Chairman Al Reidy, the Arena was highly respected as a well maintained and well run provider of hockey and figure skating needs for youth ice sports programs.

Due to Al's passing in 2005, the WAA board separated from arena management and changed its title to Investment In Youth Foundation, using a phrase that was incorporated into its logo and which better exemplified its purpose of financial support for youth involvement in ice skating sports.

The board voted unanimously to name the awards in honor of Al for his devotion and commitment to the success of the arena and youth skating programs.

The current board includes Ken DelRossi, John Ritchie, Kevin Creedon, Dennis Sullivan and Joanne McCarthy.

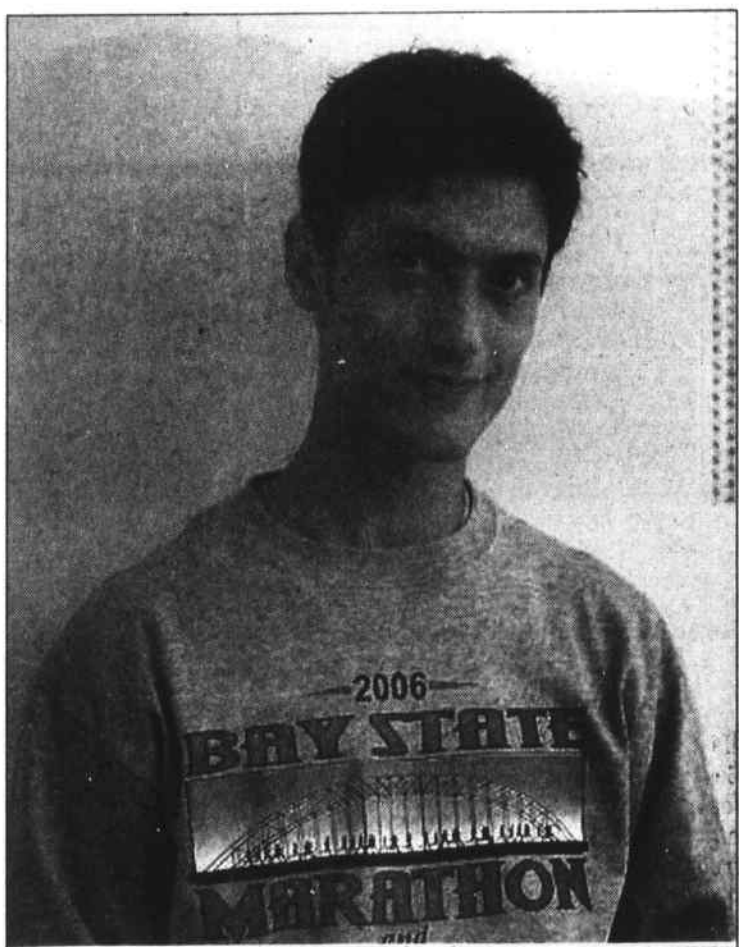

Wilmington Youth Hockey will receive the $10,000 Award in November.

did in his first race, he was not shocked at all. In fact, all he really did by finishing as high as he did was accomplish the goal he had set for himself leading up to the race.

"I was not really surprised at the end of the race," Flaherty said. "I wanted to break the top 100, so when I found out about five minutes after the race that I was 86th I thought that was really impressive for a first race. I was very happy with that."

favorite part of the race," Resic said. "And the crowd was very supportive, very nice. For my very first marathon, I had a very good first impression."

The race was not all easy for Resic, as he did hit his rough spots, particularly at about the 16 or 17 mile mark, but that was when the crowd support mattered more than ever.

"That was the toughest part when I started cramping up and it really slowed me down," Resic said. "I couldn't quite keep up with it, but that crowd was very supportive and even people who ran by me were supportive, telling me to keep going."

Resic obviously did keep going and going well, running at a pace of 8:08 per mile, not bad at all for a first timer. Local marathoners should take note, Resic may actually put in the proper training next time. Those same supportive runners along the route will likely be seeing nothing but the back of Resic as he continues to improve his time.

Reflecting on Cory Lidle's tragedy

Stop, look around, and enjoy the Toy Store

Here are moments in all our lives when we are snapped back, at least briefly, to life's realities. Last Wednesday afternoon I was rushing needlessly, still trying to deal with pain and recovering from a recent illness, when I flicked on the television and got a good dose of that reality.

New York Yankee pitcher Cory Lidle and his flight instructor had slammed a plane into a 40-story apartment building on Manhattan's Upper East Side. The images came over the television screen via the CNN Network as I sat and began reflecting upon life.

A heavy statement you say? I've been doing a lot of reflecting lately after my latest bout with cancer. But, like many Americans, I pause briefly and begin running to the next task at hand. Some days it takes a major event to slow me down. Safe to say, a tragedy of last Wednesday afternoon's magnitude qualifies as a major event.

You see a high rise building on fire in New York and you immediately think 9-11 all over again. That probability is always there, and in this very different America, we all try to deal with the event, and move on.

But, should we simply move on? It took the image of a burning building and the news that a New York Yankee pitcher had perished to get me to sit down on my couch and watch ... and rest ... and think about how fragile all our lives are.

Many years ago shortly before I left the Town Crier as the Sports Editor, I picked up the phone and got heavy criticism from a loyal soccer mom. Her son's name hadn't appeared in the weekly sports wrap-up and she wondered why. The angry mom cursed me, yelled for a couple of minutes, and abruptly hung up.

Wow. I thought. I've just worked 14 hours without sleep, and I've got to listen to this?

But, I love my job. Am I working too hard? Is that phone call, and the others like it, worth the effort that it takes to maintain my professionalism?

I could answer none of those questions on my own. It took a catastrophic illness to get me to pause, slow down and smell the coffee if you will. I'm no different than many of us. We need money, success and more material needs. It makes us all feel good, and sometimes we rush to get at these rewards, knocking over one another in the process.

Then I got sick, assessed where I should go from here, and even when the doctors told me to slow down, I didn't. I was programmed to work, and work hard. Eight more years of this work regime only made me sicker, physically and spiritually.

Then something, someone told me to stop, take my dog for a walk and sit by the beautiful pond behind my house.

These were baby steps, however. I still found myself not listening to people who really cared about me. Simple conversations passed me by. I had lost my ability to listen. I had lost my ability to look at life's simple pleasures.

So, I took off for South Florida and enjoyed the Fort Lauderdale beaches for nine months. I exercised. I practiced yoga. I meditated. I was blessed in that many people don't get such an opportunity at a second chance at slowing life down. It sounds silly to some, but I looked longingly at cloud formations. I actually tasted my breakfast. Gee, that long shower felt good, I thought.

This is good stuff. All part of being a better me. For years I worked in what newspapermen call the "toy store" of the print media.

Sports coverage was a virtual Toys R Us. Still, I ran. Much of life passed me by while I worked on the next edition of the paper.

It's good to be back at the Town Crier as the new, take-life-in-moderation me. Still, I don't always pay attention. Am I running needlessly? Am I now listening to another person's suggestions or conversation? I mean truly hearing what people are talking about. Life should be good. Too many of us make it miserable.

This week when you hit your knees and pray for Cory Lidle's family - or anyone in your life that might need some support, even yourself - take some time after that prayer to hug your kid.

So he didn't score a goal or make the newspaper. So what? Is he or she healthy? Do they enjoy (most) every day of their lives? Can you stop running and enjoy the toy store that is sports?

If I can do it, anyone can. What's the weather forecast for tomorrow anyway?

Hampton Beach, -NH on September 15-16, 2006. The team ran 200 miles through the night with 300 other teams from around the country. The team of 11 runners ran with spirit and determination to raise funds and awareness for Neurofibromatosis (NF).

Neurofibromatosis is a serious tumor disorder that causes tumors to form on the nerves anywhere in or on the body at any time. At the present time, there is no means of prevention, no effective treatment and no cure. NF affects three times as many people as Muscular Dystrophy and Cystic Fibrosis combined, yet is much less known.

The funds raised will go to help fund research, such as research being done at the Center of NF and Allied Disorders of the Harvard Medical Schools and its affiliated hospitals, which is a "NF Center of Excellence", established to integrate research and clinical work, and fund other NF-related research activities. NF needs your support since Federal funding for the new fiscal year is uncertain and if NF receives funding it will be significantly decreased from previous years.

There is promising research and human studies being done to reduce tumors, however more needs to be done to continue and expand the research

Currently ranked in the top half of the CCC, the team has battled through an up and down year so far - most recently tying Roger Williams University 0-0 in overtime.

The second half of the season will challenge the Pilgrims, as they face CCC rivals Curry and Gordon in a warm-up to post-season play in October.

Sophomore forward Debbie Lyons, of Wilmington, continues her stellar career at NEC being named to the CCC Honor Roll twice in the first half of the season. Her Honor Roll performance included two goals in NEC's 3-2 win over Salve Regina, and two goals in NEC's win over Wentworth.

She leads her team with five goals and one assist. She has taken nine shots-on goal and

Chiefs play best game of the season in weekend's victory

Senior Division:

Chiefs 24 vs. Titans 8:

The Chiefs played their strongest game of the season, and held off the Titans to end the regular season with a 24-8 victory. The Chiefs started out strong right from the beginning as Nick LaCascia brought back the opening kickoff to the 45 yard line.

The Chiefs offense got some good line play with David Summiel, Zach Young, Doug McMeniman, Mike Patenaude and Ethan Cullwell opening up some big holes for running backs, Robbie Wallace, David Medina and Nick Lacascia.

The Chiefs pounded the middle then hit a big play on a reverse from David Medina to Robbie Wallace who barreled up the left side and brought down at the 1 yard line. Evan Conway cut up the middle and punched in the first touchdown of the game for the Chiefs after the two point conversion (kick) by Pat Bernardo the Chiefs led 8-0.

The Chiefs defense led by JC Forster, Jerry Etienne and Danny Mugford stopped the Titans who went for it on fourth down on the 50 yard line and 3 plays later the Chiefs busted a big run up the right side by David Medina for a touchdown. Pat Bernardo kicked his second two-point conversion (kick) and the Chiefs led 16-0. After the kickoff Mathew Horgan tackled the return man of the Titans deep in their own end.

A couple of nice tackles were made by Ian Flynn and Sean Taylor to force a turnover on downs for the Chiefs.

Nick Lacascia then on a run up the middle bounced it to the outside and ran in the third touchdown for the Chiefs, Pat kicked his third two-point conversion and the Chiefs led 24-0.

The Titans first play after the touchdown was a long pass attempt that was intercepted by Evan Conway. Brandon Hanifin took over the Quarterback responsibilities from Danny Mugford and directed the offense.

The backs were Nick Winn, Evan Conway and Ian Flynn. Evan ripped off a big run and was caught by a shoestring tackle that prevented another score by the Chiefs as the half came to an end.

In the second half The Titans managed a nice drive that ended in a touchdown. They also converted a two-point (kick) and trailed 24-8. Nick Winn took over in the third quarter with some punishing runs up the middle. Brandon Hanifin nearly came up with another interception for the Chiefs but the referee ruled the ball hit the ground first.

The Chiefs offense for the fourth quarter also included Ryan Anzoni, Grant Darveau, Josh Fallon, Frank McInnis and Keith Bradley, with a make shift offensive line comprised of the starting backfield.

The coaching experiment netted little results but managed to eat up some clock and after two kneel downs the Chiefs celebrated a great all around effort with a 24-8 win.

The Titans suffered a tough loss Sunday to the Chiefs. Offense struggled once again for the Titans and didn't seem to find groove. Stefan Herceg scored the lone Titan touchdown and followed by kicking the point after as well. Offensive stand outs were O-linemen Steve Higgins, Matt Luppi, and the O'Keefe brothers (Brendon and Brandon). The Titans defence had a rough day but hope to rebound next Sunday against the undefeated Raiders. The defensive stand outs were JT Theisen, Chris Bettano, Joey Kasprzak, Scott Thurlow, and Corey Cataldo.

Raiders 7 vs. Giants 0:

The Raiders beat the Giants last Sunday afternoon 7-0, in one the toughest defensive battles of the year for both teams. In the first quarter, neither team could muster any attack as the Raiders fumbled and lost the ball on their first play from scrimmage. The Giants also had two fumbles which they recovered in their first series of plays.

Highlighted key plays in the quarter included Chris Andella charging through the Giants front line and cutting down a sweep with a 7 yard loss, David Gallotto barreling through tackles for several nice gains and Bobby Greenwood containing on the outside and shutting down a few outside Giants running plays. The first quarter ended scoreless.

The second quarter started and the Raiders defense turned it up another notch as Sean McCarthy, David Gallotto and Paul Moriarty stuffed up an off-tackle Giant run which forced a third and 14.

On the next play Chris Lee stayed home and contained on the right side of the Raiders defense as he foiled a Giants reverse play and caught their running back deep in the backfield for a 6 yard loss.

The Giants were then force to punt once again. The Raiders next series of plays included an 8 yard screen pass to Anthony Arcari, a 6 yard sweep to the left by Ryan Vibber, Quarterback sneak by David Gallotto for 8 yards and a counter run by Bobby Greenwood for 7 yards.

Unfortunately the Raiders had 2 crucial penalties and an incomplete pass on fourth down which forced the Raiders to turn the ball over to the Giants as the half ended still scoreless.

The Chiefs kicked off to the Raiders to begin the second half and Anthony Arcari returned the kick 20 yards to the 40 yard line. The Raiders needed to handle the ball better and move it with a strong offensive drive. David Gallotto ran off tackle for a powering 9 yards and picked up a first down at midfield.

The Raiders were starting to get their offense in gear as quarterback Ryan Woolaver ran a sneak for 3 yards.

On fourth down and 3, David Gallotto fought through several tackles and a first down at the Giants 39 yard line with 6:24 to play in the quarter.

The Raiders were then caught for a 5 yard loss on their next sweep play and then Ryan Woolaver connected with Gallotto on a down and out pass play for 17 yards and another first down at the 23 yard line.

On third down and 18 yards, Devyn Lorick ran a nice quick sweep to the right and raced 23 yards into the end zone for the first score of the day. David Gallotto faked the extra point kick and scampered to the left side for the extra point and a Raiders 7-0 lead.

The Raiders tried an inside kick which was recovered by the Giants at their own 43 yard line. The next series of plays were owned by Raiders middle linebacker Sean McCarthy, who busted through the Giants offensive line and knocked down a Giants pass and then on fourth down a fired up McCarthy sacked the Quarterback for a huge 6 yard loss.

The Raiders took over on downs and were trying to put this one out of reach with another score.

The fourth quarter began as the Raiders took over at the Giants 43 yard line. A Raiders 2 yard loss and a 5-yard penalty set up a second and 17 yards. On the next play Anthony Arcari ran a sweep to the right and broke through 6 or 7 Giants tackles for a first down at the Giants 33 yard line. The Raiders then fumbled on their next play and gave the ball back to the Giants.

The Giants then had the ball but could not pick up a first down and the Raiders took over on downs at the Giants 36 yard line.

The Raiders were then flagged for back to back penalties for illegal blocks and were faced with third and 23 yards. Ryan Woolaver who continued to move the Raiders offense hit a streaking David Gallotto for a 28 yard pass play and a Raiders first down at the Giants 24 yard line.

Ryan Vibber ran off tackle for 5 yards and Anthony Arcari swept right for 10 yards and a Raiders first down at the 9 yard line. The Raiders fumbled on their next play and the Giants took over at their own 14 yard line.

The Giants ran a sweep to the left to midfield and a first down with under 1:30 remaining. On the next play they connected on a pass play to the 22 yard line. Then on third down and 12 yards on the last play of the game the Giants threw into the end zone which was caught but then dropped as Devyn Lorick, Ryan Vibber and Anthony Arcari converge and forced the incomplete pass as time expired.

The Raiders held on for their sixth win, 6-0 record and first place in the Senior Division. The Raiders will play the Titans next week in the playoff semifinals.

The Raiders offensive standouts were Ryan Woolaver, David Gallotto, Anthony Arcari, Devyn Lorick, Justin Fortier, Matt Greenwood, Allyn Hood and Roby Reitano.

The defense was lead by Sean McCarthy, Chris Andella, Chris Lee, Paul Moriarty, Matt Kando, Brandon McCarthy, Michael Pino and Pat Taylor.

The Giants dropped a tough game to the Raiders 7-0. The game was a battle of the defenses as both teams took shots, with the Raiders able to break a run for a touchdown.

A great effort at quarterback by Brian King as he led an offense that made a valiant effort at the end of the fourth quarter to come back in the game. Mike Amentolla, James Francois, Dante Sabatino, Zach Jacques and Jordan Griffin battled with a good Raider defensive line that seemed to find it's way into the Giant backfield all game.

Defensively, Rob Conley and Chris Deceatis played the outside run well as Joe Hulme, Sean Ellwood and Mike McCarthy provided the pass protection. Dan Altavesta, Rich Jean, Matt Hoffman and John McCarthy provided the run support up the middle.

Amentolla, and Damien Sabatino combined on a forced fumble. Jailyn Sparks and Rob Trainor provided a push up the middle on many plays forcing the Raiders to turn to the passing game.

The fourth quarter was filled with a lot of excitement as John McCarthy connected on a pass to D.J. Ray. Ray was triple covered as the ball was tipped by two Raider defenders as Ray concentrated for the twenty yard completion.

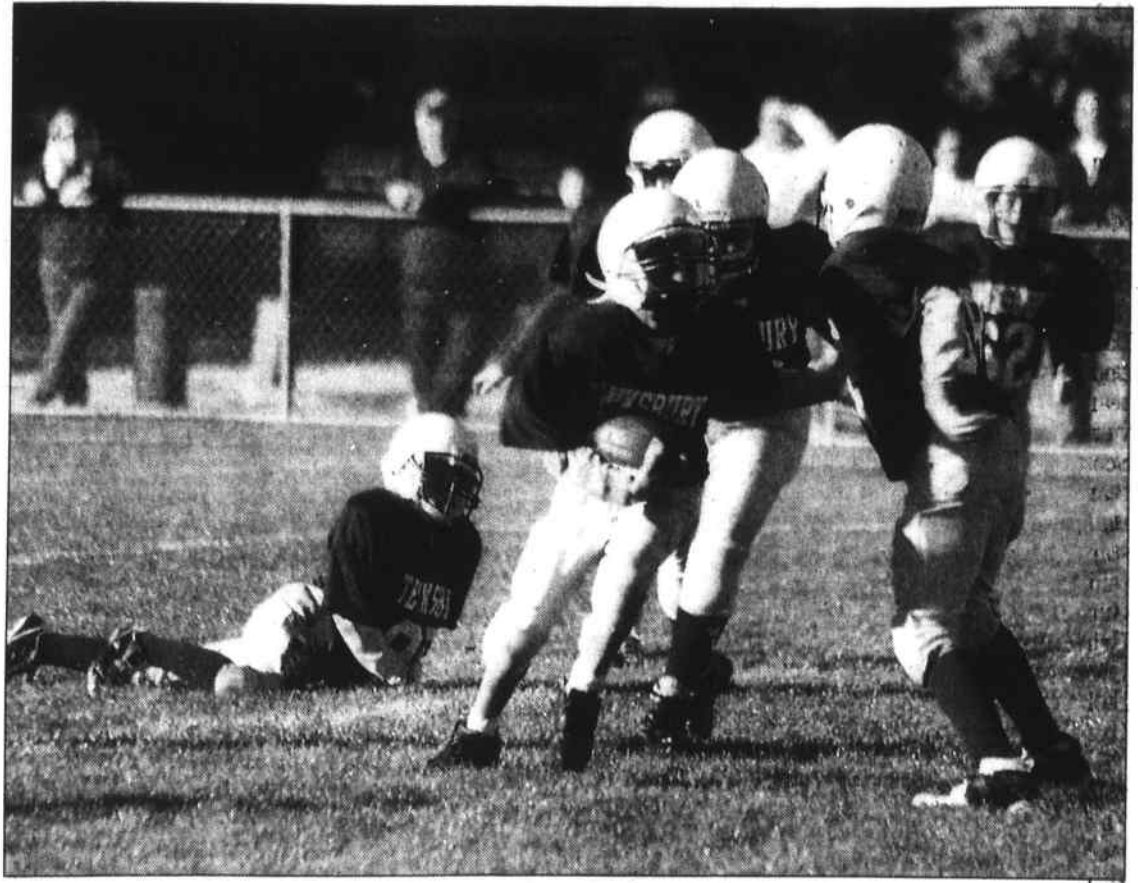

The Giants were able to spike the ball setting up a last ditch effort to score. Brian King went back to pass and threw a great pass to the endzone that was broken up by the Raiders.

Intermediate Division:

Cherokee 12 vs. Sioux 6:

With the passing game not clicking and the Sioux playing there "A" game the Cherokee had to be find other ways to win this past Saturday afternoon. And they did, in route to a 12-6 victory coming only on the last play in regulation.

The receiving core of the Cherokee were not as sharp as in past weeks and two Justin Nobrega interceptions, one for the only Sioux Touchdown, demanded a change in game plan. That change was utilizing the multi-talented Zach Jacobs 24 yards on 5 carries and 26 yards receiving on two catches and the emerging star of Jayson Walden 35 yards on 8 carries and 51 yards receiving on two catches.

Including the 45-yard catch and run that won the game with no time left on the clock. Nobrega also showed his speed on a 60-yard punt return for the other Touchdown behind the excellent blocking of Brendan Locke.

Other offensive standouts were Danny Donovan, Nick Noel, Cameron Murphy, and Brendan Hibner.

The defense again did not let up any points on their watch for the second week in a row. The return of team captain Kyle Pandolph was immediately felt by opening the game with one of his two sacks on the day. He was assisted by the three pillars of Coach Mulvanity's Defense Jacobs, Kevin Sassin, and Christian Taylor 3 tackles for losses.

Peter Knoop and Locke added with a pass deflection each. Other standouts were Dillon Rogers and Peter Brekalis.

The Sioux played their best game of the year defensively. No points were scored in the first quarter thanks to great line work by Andrew Magnell, CJ Coviello, Ben Soli, Matt Lacascia, Russell Jean, Jimmy Doran, Corey Poirier and Anthony Lavita. All played their position and made some bone crunching tackles throughout the game.

Linebackers Joe Penta, Jimmy Peters, Alec Mottolo and Matt Blaisdell did their part in stuffing the holes and not allowing the Cherokee any big runs up the middle. Mike Weitz, Brendan Bednarek, Daniel Turosz and Justin Bettano covered the corners like a blanket, while Safety's Derek McGaffigan and Will Lerette came up to assist on several tackles. Andrew Rogers had a superb game, making several tackles and a key interception on pass coverage.

Offensively the Sioux struggled due in large part to the out-matched size of the Cherokee line. The offensive line did a good job protecting Quarterback Ryan Bradley who has done a good job since stepping in as Quarterback last week.

Running backs Alec Mottolo, Russell Jean, Joe Penta and Ryan Bradley had some nice runs during the game, but neither team moved the ball very far with the tough defense of both the Sioux and Cherokee.

The Sioux scored their only touchdown on an 80 yard interception return by Joe Penta who got some great blocks during the return from several Sioux players including Jimmy Peters. Special teams also had a good day with great pursuit and nice tackles by Justin Bettano, Joe Penta and Corey Poirier. The Sioux had a great performance and will hopefully be able to build a good plan for the playoffs.

The Sioux coaches and players would once again like to thank the Cheerleaders and Staff for their support during the game.

Navajo 12 vs. Apache 0:

On Saturday 10-14-06 the Navajo played a great game against the very good Apache team, with the final score 12-0 in favor of the Navajo. On the offensive side of the ball we had a very difficult time moving the ball.

Edwin Montanez broke the game open with a touchdown run of about 45 yards, he had some great down field blocking by Matt Lucia and James Sullivan to get him into the open. The offensive line Dan Lamarka and Nick Petrone made some great upfront blocking to keep the ball moving down the field.

Edwin Montanez also ran a punt back for a touchdown. On defense Joey Veloza had a monster game at Defensive End pressuring the Quarterback all game long. Dominic Rosado had played a very good game both on offense and on defense.

Eric Veloza, Mike McAteer and Anthony Payne played very well at defensive backs not giving up any major plays, which is a credit to all the hard work they have been putting in at practice. We would like to thank our cheerleaders and all the parents for coming out and cheering on the Navajo.

The Apache and the Navajo had the opportunity to play a game for bragging rights of first place in the regular season. The Apache succumbed resulting in a 12-0 score in favor of the Navajo.

The Apache defense was led by John Devito's six tackles against an explosive Navajo offense fell victim to a sole long touchdown run accounting for the only offensive points in the game.

After failing to have much success running to the outside, the Navajo attempted to run up the middle, however, the half backs were unable to sustain any drives due to the presence of John Moccia at nose guard, Woodworth's tackles at middle linebacker and touchdown saving stops by Tyler Siverhus at safety.

On offense Christos Kourkoulos showed tremendous effort with two long runs only to come up short of the end zone. Thanks to some superb blocking by Alec Difruscia and Kevin Haley, Kevin Dick was able to have numerous power moves up the middle as well as three pass receptions.

The Apache players and coaches are committed to a great week of practice with the hope of prevailing over a strong Cherokee passing game and participate in their third straight super bowl.

Junior Division:

Comanche 13 vs. Mohawk 6:

A great defensive effort by the Comanche and a key extra point pass play early in the game gave the Comanche their second win this season. After a couple of four and outs, Ryan Cunningham ran a quarterback keeper for the 40-yard touchdown. A key play of the day came when Dylan Pendleton caught the Comanche's first pass of the season for the extra point and the 7-0 lead.

The Mohawk had good field position and were starting to move the ball when Alex Schelfhaudt and David Lindsey stopped them by forcing a fumble as the first half ended. The Mohawk didn't give up and quickly scored early in the second half making it a close 7-6 score.

Solid defensive plays by Tony Simmons, Jonathan Tower, Seth Sparks, Nick Fiore, Jackson Roane, Steve Conley, Paul Wild, Samuel Canelas, Ryan Briggs, Jackson Stone, and Andrew Carman kept the Mohawk out of the end zone for the rest of the game.

Both teams were having trouble moving the ball when Max Brown opened it up with a 65-yard run down to the 1-yard line with the Comanche offensive line plowing forward for the 1-yard touchdown and the 13-6 win.

Other solid Comanche performances were put in by Mike McInnis, Kyle Benson, Pat Wild, Alex Tate, Jared Roane, Kevin Vonkahl, and Tyler Carta.

The Mohawk showed a lot of determination in a contest that was close to the very end.

Brendan O'Connor punched it into the end zone to keep the game a one point contest most of the way. Chris Sassin once again lead by example, chasing down the opposing running back to save what looked to be a sure touchdown.

Playing banged up most of the game, it was a total team effort that the Mohawk should be proud of. Solid contributions by Lucas Thiessen, Julien Unger, Ty Ward, Robert Klerowski, Josh Tirrell, Devan Bere, and Tim Lynch.

The Mohawks are looking forward to the playoffs!

Wamesit 18 vs. Cheyenne 0: The Cheyenne had a real tough game and the Wamesit came out in full force to play. In the first quarter the Wamesit started the scoring with a 6-0 lead but the Cheyenne defense held the extra point.

Tough defensive players were Ely Lobo, Michael Strangle, James Hirtle, Nicholas Valente, Alex Dirocco, Christian Kyle, Joe Lalonde, Bobby Piccolo, Jonathan Verrill, Stephen Rosa, Mack Boucher, and Jimmy Boucher.

Great efforts on special teams were Michael Strangle with a long tough run, Brian Lefebvre, Billy Bennette, Justin Whitehouse, Aaron Whitehouse, Cameron Carmichael, Robert Paltrineri and Ethan Hepler with great speed and blocking which kept the Wamesit from getting good field position.

The Cheyenne offense tried their hardest to move the ball up the field but the Wamesit held them all game. Outstanding offensive players were Jimmy Hirtle with strong runs up the middle, Alex Dirocco with quick speed, Ely Lobo with amazing blocking, Nicholas Valente with powerful hits, and Michael Strangle leading the offense as Quarterback.

Good efforts on offense by T.J. Contalonis, Michael Baker, Christian Kyle and Danny McCreven. The Cheyenne still never gave up and Ely Lobo stopped the Wamesit's passing game with an interception. Hats off to a great squad the Wamesit and to the Cheyenne cheerleaders who kept everyone in good spirits through out the game.

The Wamesit closed out the regular season with a 6-0 record after defeating the Cheyenne 18-0 on Saturday. The tone of the game was set from the start as the Gold Offense took the ball on a long methodical drive which ended in a 7 yard touchdown run by Steven Hamel. This was the first touchdown scored by this unit all year.

Ryan Morris, Chan Jay Lay, Hamel and Quarterback Ryan Bednarek all contributed on the drive with determined running and David Scarpa, Jonathan Grundhoff, Brett Morris, Michael Monahan, Josh Gadue, Nick Zullo, and Robert Papandrea all did a great job blocking.

The Red Offense, aided by the blocking of Cam Gahagan and Nick Salvato, added two more touchdowns as Evan Saunders scored on runs of 25 and 53 yards around left end.

The Wamesit defense turned in another great team effort for their 5th shutout of the year. The Cheyenne had some success moving the ball but the defense always came up with the big play when it was needed to keep them off the scoreboard.

Troy Carey, Blake Schumacher, Vinny Iannacci and Ryan Carey all made big tackles throughout the contest. Nick McKeon, Max Benson, Rich Pachucki and T.J. Taddia also played well contributing to the shutout.

The Wamesit congratulate the well-coached Cheyenne team for a hard fought game and wish them well in the playoffs. The Wamesit also would like to thank their fans and cheerleaders for their constant support.

Lizzy joined our team for the tourney. Forwards were Megan Priem and Amy Scott. The pressure by both teams was fast and unrelenting. Megan and Amy received some great passes from their mids Anna, Lizzy and Lauren. Our defense was strong and Erin and Delaney did a stellar job at keeping the ball out of the box and keeping goaltender Ryan happy.

A change in shifts brought some fresh legs onto the scene. Taking over for the offense were Taylor Fletcher and Kate Kinsella at forwards and Brittany Cavanaugh, Jacqui Duffy and Caitlin Cheney at midfield and Emmy Colossimo and Becky McLaren on defense.

The girls continued to clear the ball out of the Wilmington end and this time the strong defense of Becky and Emmy paid off. They managed to get the ball to their midfielders Kate and Brittany who did some nice short passes and found Jackie in great position. Jackie took the pass and found the corner of the net where she planted it. Wilmington was up 1-0.

The second half started with Jacqui in net and some changes in the lines. On defense were Ryan and Erin. Midfield saw the new legs of Lauren Lizzy and Brittany. On the offense were Anna and Megan. Anna showed no mercy as she took a few power shots that were just shy of the posts. North Andover was still held scoreless. Substitutions took place by both teams.

Now the Wildcats had Emmy and Delaney on D, Amy, Becky and Caitlin at midfield and Taylor and Kate on offense. The 'Cats continued to play some strong ball but unfortunately in the final minutes of the game N.Andover found the ball in front of the net and with a lot of swinging feet the ball found its way into the net. The game ended in a 1-1 tie.

Sunday brought two new opponents for Wilmington to face and also found them without one of their players. Kate sustained a concussion in Saturday morning's game. While she couldn't play in the remaining games, she was there to cheer her teammates on and even helped out getting the lines ready for substitutions.

The first opponent was the Tewksbury United and another North Andover team, the Knight Mares, later in the day. Tewksbury proved to be a tough opponent. The girls had a strong first half and the teams seemed to be playing well against each other. A crazy bounce off one of the divots in front of the net put the ball in the goal for the Tewksbury and gave them a 1-0 lead.

The wildcats seemed to have a bit of trouble getting their rhythm back and took a loss to this Tewksbury team.

The next game is what makes this a great sports story. With one tie and one loss, the girls had no chance of making into the finals that were scheduled to be played on Monday. One would think this may cause the girls discouragement and a lack of motivation. But the girls seemed to have another plan.

With Coach Duffy changing the line ups and giving the girls chances to play where they typically don't, the girls capitalized on this opportunity. The power defenders Delaney and Erin found themselves on the attack. If you were new to watching the team one would never have known that these girls are typically the defense. At midfield were Lizzy and Lauren. Again, Lizzy an addition to our team for this tournament found her groove in this game and came up with some great passes and did a great job at slowing the ball down when North Andover was on the attack. Brittany seemed to find the ball each and every time and clear it out of our end. Caitlin also did some super throw in's and brought the ball up the sidelines for scoring opportunities for the 'Cats.

Megan and Jackie showed their hustle and determination as they showed no fear in attacking the ball and causing their opponent to make some turnovers. Amy and Anna found themselves on defense - another change by coach. Amy proved herself to be a great defender with getting the ball out to the sides as well as showing her ability to find the open area during her throw-ins. Anna too proved to be a wall and was there to meet her attackers head on and take over the ball. Fletch showed her versatility yet again by flawlessly switching from defense to forward. With her lightning speed she was always able to track the opponent down and end their drive. Emmy was another who showed her adaptability as she was put on the attack.

With some nice foot work and ball control, she got by many a North Andover defender and challenged the keeper, Delaney and Megan scored for the 'Cats and they won this game against the undefeated North Andover Knight Mares. What makes this a sweet victory was not the score on the board but rather a showing of what true teamwork is about.

The girls showed their adaptability and trust in their teammates to make their unfamiliar positions work. They had faith that the typical defender would take the ball to the net and the typical offender would provide solid protection. While we may not have made it to the finals, the girls play and attitude was a win in our books!!

Thanks to our coaches Walter Duffy, Andrea Gillis and Gabe whose time and dedication to the girls is appreciated. Thanks also to the parents and grandparents who show support all season as well as these tournaments. Thanks to Lizzy and her parents for joining our team. Feel better soon Kate and thanks for the cupcakes!!

Under 11-3 Girls

The Wilmington Girls U11-3 team went up against their toughest opponent of the season on Tuesday night as the Billerica Shamrocks came to the pitch at Shawsheen Field.

The Billerica girls came to play and put the pressure on the Wildcats defense from the opening kickoff. Kerry Ryan, Kristen Marranzini and Alyssa Cieplik were tested early and often at the backer position while keeper Christina D'Ambrosio thwarted a number of early rushes to keep the Shamrocks in check. Billerica had built a 3-0 lead before the Wildcats came on late in the second half with a great redirected goal by Heather Benson off an Alyssa Cieplik crossing pass.

The Wildcat fans came to life as the girls showed that they were not going down easily. Katherine McKenna took over in the keeper position for the second half and was able to keep the game close. Alyssa Cieplik scored midway through the second half on a 20-yard scoring strike which came after a beautiful combination pass. Adrianna Kippenberger drove the ball deep into the Billerica end, crossed it to Kelly Hartsough who touched it back to Alyssa for the blast which found the top right corner of the net.

Unfortunately for the Wildcats, the Shamrocks proved too much to handle and posted two late scores for a final score of 5-2.

The Wildcats bounced right back on Saturday as they hosted Somerville in what proved to be the most exciting and well played game of the season for the girls. The action was hot right from the opening touch as both sides came ready to play. Katherine McKenna started in goal for Wilmington and pitched a first half shutout.

The Somerville keeper was just as hot and despite enormous pressure by Wilmington attackers Sarah Rakers, Christina D'Ambrosio, Amanda Richards and Ashleigh Howland she was able to keep the Wildcats off the board. The Wildcats mid-fielders led by Meghan Sullivan and Brianna Gendreau at center mid demonstrated some lethal passing skills to keep the ball on the Somerville side of the field most of the game. Heather Benson took over as keeper in the second half and continued to stop everything that was kicked at her.

The game intensity increased in the second half as the Wildcats continued to dominate. Outside mid-fielders Hannah Kirby, Katherine McKenna, Kelly Hartsough and Adrianna Kippenberger provided plenty of excitement in this one with well timed rushes and crossing passes.

The Wilmington offense had the Somerville defenders back on their heels the entire game but, just couldn't find the back of the net. Kerry Ryan, Kristen Marranzini, Christina D'Ambrosio and Alyssa Cieplik did a super job keeping the Somerville attackers away from the Wildcat net.

Final score Wilmington 0-Somerville-0. Great game girls!

Under 11 Boys team continues winning ways

After a U-10 Division II Cup Championship in the Third Grade, followed by a U-10 Division I Commissioners Cup runner up in the Fourth Grade, the Boys U-11 Team began this season with wins over Everett, Tewksbury, Lincoln and Winchester. Their sole loss came against a tough but older Lowell I team 2-1.

During the Columbus Day weekend the boys traveled to North Andover for a tough five games against primarily Sixth grade teams and left the Tournament undefeated and with the Championship Trophy's. The boys short in stature but with speed, skill and heart, totally outplayed the larger competition consistently beating their opponents to the ball.

On Saturday, with goals from Drew Foley, Nick DiStefano, and Austin O'Neal, the boys won 6-1. The game was dominated by the Mid-Field play of Eric Grabar, Matt Diorio, Kyle Souza, Jared Walsh and Kevin Keane. Strong defense by Chris Saporito, Jimmy Murphy, Michael Diorio and Kory McGilvray kept the Andover Team from any serious opportunities. During the few chances Andover did have, Andrew Sutton was there to make the save and clear the ball.

On Sunday, the boys faced a tough and highly skilled team from Burlington. After a quick score by Drew Foley, the game became a defensive battle for the rest of the half. Led by the defense of Michael Diorio and Kory McGilvray, along with solid punting from Goalkeeper Kevin Keane, the boys kept the ball in the offensive end.

The second half saw great passing by Kyle Souza, Chris Saporito, Eric Grabar, Matt Diorio and Austin O'Neal, which resulted in goals by Jimmy Murphy, Nicholas DiStefano and Drew Foley. The game was once again decided at Mid-Field where Jared Walsh and Andrew Sutton shut down any potential threats with their fearless play and hustle. Final score, Wilmington 4 - Burlington 1.

The second game on Sunday saw a defensive battle with an undefeated Newton Team, which had big ideas for another victory. Unfortunately for Newton, they had not met Center-Mid Jared Walsh. Jared started the scoring early with a redirect of a Nicholas DiStefano pass.

With scoring opportunities from Austin O'Neal, Kyle Souza and Kevin Keane thwarted by a strong Newton Defense, the half ended 1-0.

The second half began with a strong Newton push for scoring opportunities. However, the Wilmington Defense of Drew Foley, Chris Saporito Michael Diorio and Jimmy Murphy bent but did not break. Andrew Sutton, once again was phenomenal in net making save after save and clearing the ball to Mid-Fielders Eric Grabar and Matt Diorio who pushed the ball into the offensive end.

The game was sealed by a beautiful pass from Kory McGilvray to Nicholas DiStefano for a rocket into the net, sealing a 2-0 win. These teams would meet again!

On Monday morning, the boys met another undefeated team (2-0-1) and Bracket winner, North Andover, in what would be a physical semi-final match. Realizing that they could not catch Wilmington, North Andover continuously tried to bump the Wilmington boys off the ball.

During some of these instances the bumping went much farther, the U-11 boys however, kept their cool, played smart, and jumped out to a 1-0 lead on a great feed from Chris Saporito to Austin O'Neal to Drew Foley and into the net. During the first half, the defense of Jimmy Murphy and Kory McGilvray, outsmarted North Andover, preventing any serious shots on net.

The second half continued to see great defense especially from Mid-Fielders Jared Walsh, Matt Diorio, Kevin Keane and Kyle Souza, who despite being pushed off the ball stayed with it eventually winning it back and clearing the ball.

Midfielder Eric Grabar had several good Throw In's which eventually led to a Michael Diorio to Nicholas DiStefano score making it 2-0. Several big saves by Andrew Sutton and a Penalty Kick goal by Drew Foley saw the game end with a 3-0 Wilmington victory.

The finals on Monday afternoon saw a defensive rematch with Newton. Newton realizing Wilmington's fire power kept three big defenders back the entire game. Back and forth action between the two teams kept the ball at mid-field throughout the first half. Wilmington's Mid's Eric Grabar, Kyle Souza and Jared Walsh constantly maintained their positions stopping the Newton push and sending the ball to the offensive end creating scoring opportunities by Matt Diorio and Jimmy Murphy. However, the half ended 0-0.

The second half began with defensive stops by Drew Foley and Christopher Saporito, and a dynamite save by Andrew Sutton in net. Another Newton scoring opportunity was broken up by a fine defensive trap and clear by Nicholas DiStefano to Michael Diorio which resulted in a quick move and another scoring chance. The win was finally sealed with quick passes from Kevin Keane to Austin O'Neal to Kory McGilvray, who made a quick move and chipped it by the Newton Goalie for a score. Final Score: Wilmington 1 - Newton 0.

Advance Man

Ahead of the times

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Wakefield resident George Hartman's book "Advance Man: The Life and Times of Harry Hoagland" shows that being in the right place at the right time is not the most important aspect of life; knowing what to do when the opportunity arises is important; but being loyal and helpful to those people you meet along the way can be the most important factor to success.

"Largely (Hoagland's) legacy is one of philanthropy and loyalty to his family, his business, and his (political) party," Hartman said.

The biography chronicles the life of Henry Williamson "Harry" Hoagland, Jr. (1912-1995) from his start as the son of a prominent United States Army doctor, through his college years and into his life, which touches on many aspects of modern American life, as we know it. The book also chronicles changes that have been made in the way the United States Army equips its troops; the way candidates run presidential election campaigns; and the way many of the high-tech businesses in this area received the funding to get started.

Hoagland is described as a pioneer in post World War II business and politics, according to the books public relations material. What makes this book an interesting piece to read is the way Hartman shows how each piece of Hoagland's life was used as a stepping stone and learning experience.

As an example, Hoagland's love of baseball, although he was unable to play, led him to become the manager for the Stanford University team while he attended that institution. His attempts to organize a trip to Japan for the team led him to meet people that would be influential in his later life and gave him skills that he used in several different career moves, including being the first official advance man for a presidential candidate - Dwight David Eisenhower.

General Georges Doriot first came into Hoagland's life as a professor during the younger man's years at Harvard Business School. Later, Hoagland would work under Doriot as a member of the United States Army's Military Planning Division and later as partners in one of the first venture capital firms American Research and Development (AR&D).

Doriot was often quoted as telling the following story: "On a road somewhere, three men were breaking stones. They were asked what they were doing.

"One said, 'I earn my living.'

"One said, 'I break stones.'

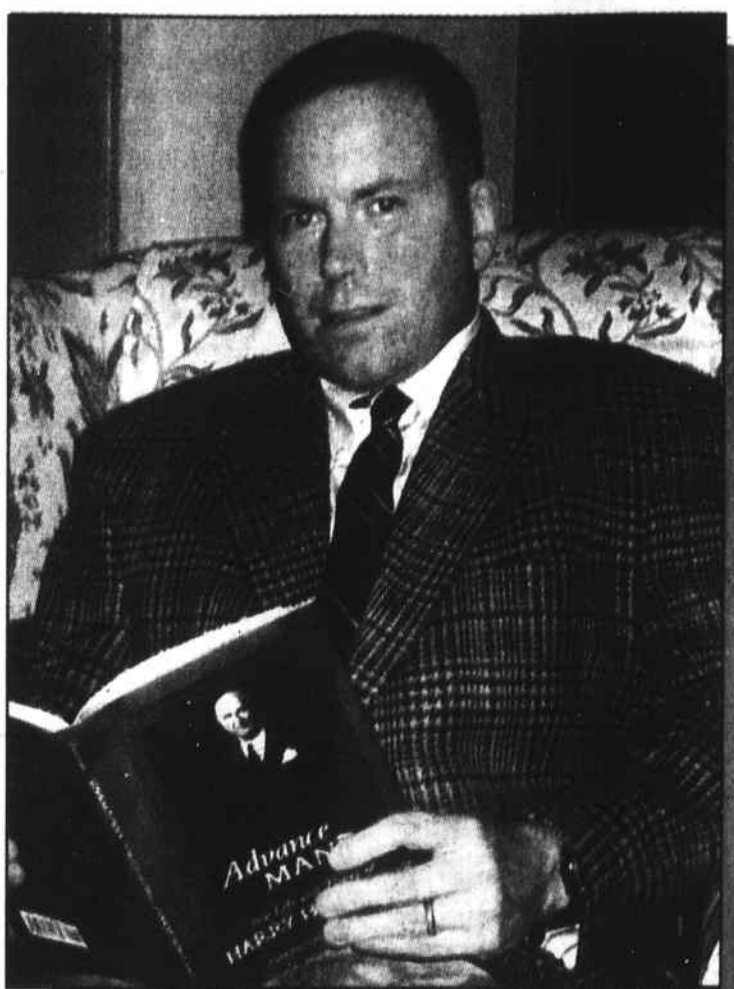

"One said, 'I help build cathedrals.'

"Let us build cathedrals together."

In his forward to the book U.S. Secretary of Energy Samuel W. Bodman states, "... (This) oft repeated parable comes softly to mind when I reflect upon the extraordinary contributions that Harry made during his lifetime. The invitation to build cathedrals is certainly an apt metaphor for the life of this gentle but inspiring man and the profound impact he had on countless individuals and organizations."

Secretary Bodman continues in his forward and states: "The story of Harry's life is really the story of America during the twentieth century. Harry's life ran from the mountains of Colorado to the beauty of Southern California; from the hills of North Carolina to the magnificence of Palo Alto; from Washington to Texas; from his long-time home in Boston to Wyoming and finally from the coast of Maine to his new home in Arizona. He lived and worked in virtually every part of the country. He watched each part change over the course of the century; indeed he helped change the country in fundamental ways.

"He left each place he lived and each person he touched better for the experience."

CHRISTOPHER HARTMAN of Wakefield is author of the biography of Harry Hoagland, one of America's first venture capitalists and the first official advance man for a presidential candidate, Dwight Eisenhower.

Through his participation with Doriot and AR&D, Hoagland was responsible for providing the seed money for such companies as Digital Equipment Corporation (DEC). He was one of the first Board members of that company with a $70,000 investment in 1957. In 1966 he sold his shares for $200 million.

Following World War II, Hoagland served as Deputy Director of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, the first great post-war effort by the U.S. government to administer and regulate atomic energy. He also worked with the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, which led to his two involvements with the

"MAN OF THE YEAR" AT ODDS WITH ITSELF

IN THIS PHOTO PROVIDED BY UNIVERSAL PICTURES, tv talk show host Tom Dobbs (Robin Williams) decides that he will run for President in "Man of the Year."

MAN OF THE YEAR GRADE: **

The title character of "Man of the Year" is a political pundit and humorist who gets into trouble when he begins taking himself and his presidential campaign a little too seriously.

What's ironic is that the same can be said of the film. It's all right when it's trying to be a comedy or a savvy electoral satire. But it takes a disastrous wrong turn into John Grisham-like political thriller territory and never recovers.

As a result, is at odds with itself, almost two different films mashed into one. "Man of the Year" is also one of the more deceptively advertised nims in recent memory (the ads and trailer spots make it appear to be strictly a comedy when it's anything but).

Robin Williams stars as Tom Dobbs, who has his own television program taking a satirical look at the day's headlines (something along the lines of Jon Stewart's "The Daily Show" or Stephen Colbert's "The Colbert Report").

He also becomes an unlikely presidential candidate after a fan urges him to enter the race. To the surprise of everyone, his grassroots level campaign begins to gain steam, and when election night rolls around, he apparently wins the U.S. presidency.

Stress apparently. A computer programmer named Eleanor Green (Laura Linney) has discovered a glitch in the voting software—one that has given Tom a majority of the votes.

So Eleanor finds herself on the run from her former employers, who have sent thugs to stop her from revealing the truth.

Filmmaker Barry

Levinson is trying to re-create the spirit of his 1987 hit "Good Morning, Vietnam," which also featured Williams making funny in the middle of a serious film. But he's made a serious miscalculation here.

The sudden change in tone from light comedy to deadly serious thriller is jarring, and even the cast seems a bit confused as to how they are supposed to play their roles. (Christopher Walken seems to think he's a comedian here, while comedian Lewis Black is apparently trying to act.)

That is, except for Williams, who simply tries to joke his way through the bulk of the film. And as a result, he's the only one who emerges relatively unscathed.

"THE DEPARTED" GRADE: ***

"The Departed" returns director Martin Scorsese to familiar turf: the gangster family of men and the mean streets they inhabit and turn crimson with the blood of anyone standing in their way. It reminds viewers of his classic work "GoodFellas," but without that masterpiece's coherence, clarity, urgency or sense of discovery.

But even despite this, it is superior to almost anything released this year and is a disappointment only when compared with his previous accomplishments.

"The Departed" is a remake of the Hong Kong film "Infernal Affairs," and its story is universal. It is elevated though by Scorsese's artistry and, in particular, by Jack Nicholson's effortless take as an Irish mob boss.

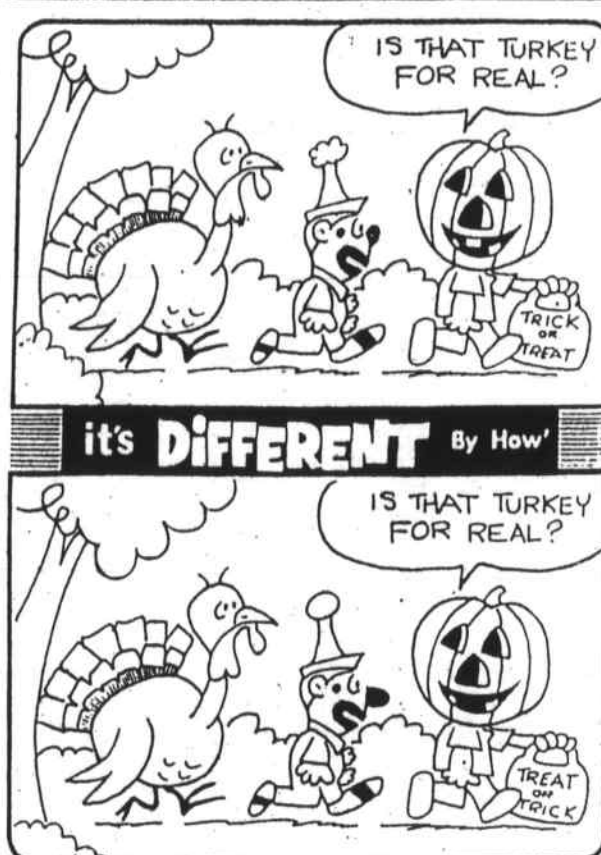

"The Departed" is about two Boston cops pretending to be what they are not. Matt Damon is a fresh-scrubbed overachiever, and Leonardo DiCaprio is his moody, scruffy, hotheaded opposite. Beneath the surface, Damon is a mob informant who was recruited into Nicholson's organization as a child and is working his way up the law enforcement food chain, while DiCaprio is a police officer who has been ordered to infiltrate Nicholson's mob by his superiors, played by Martin Sheen and Mark Wahlberg, who disavow any knowledge of his activities. They burrow into their respective organizations on parallel tracks that inevitably intersect when each is ordered to ferret out the other; Damon and DiCaprio do not even appear together until the climactic sequences.

But Nicholson is the centerpiece around which everything revolves. He gives a volatile "Scarface" of a performance, driven by internal combustion, without raising his voice or breaking a sweat, and is the corrosive constant in a tale that loses momentum as it grows convoluted. After a montage that has become a Scorsese trademark, in which characters are introduced and their trajectories set in motion through kinetic bursts of information, the film assumes a mandatory and almost procedural arc that never develops beyond these established structural and behavioral parameters.

The soundtrack, featuring the Rolling Stones and Van Morrison, sounds good while Boston looks great on film.

"The Departed" features consistently significant and award-worthy performances throughout, from Alec Baldwin's pot-bellied special agent to Wahlberg and Sheen's good cop/bad cop routine.

But dominant are Damon's boy next door, corrupted and rotting from within; DiCaprio, whose deep fears and guilt are manifested in the twitch and squint of a man hiding something; and the hooded, bloodshot eyes and devilish grin of the incomparable Nicholson, as another ruthless Scorsese archetype, covered in the blood of the departed.

"THE GUARDIAN" GRADE: **

"The Guardian" replicates some of the better military movies over the past three decades, including "An Officer and a Gentleman," along with "Top Gun" and perhaps "Full Metal Jacket."

But "The Guardian" is not about military combat training; the focus instead is on the U.S. Coast Guard Rescue Swimmers, an elite group with their motto, "So that others may live." Americans learned all about their heroics during the civilian rescue attempts from the floodwater of Hurricane Katrina, photos of which appear as the end credits roll.

Kevin Costner stars as Ben Randall, a legendary senior chief who loses his rescue crew in a tragic accident off the coast of Alaska. Suffering from the psychological scars of that mishap as well as the breakup of his marriage, Ben accepts an assignment to become the lead instructor in the rescue swimmer training program.

There he encounters a young recruit named Jake Fischer (Ashton Kutcher), a high school swimming champ complete with a smirk on his face. We all know where this story is going.

The intense rivalry between the trainer and trainee goes through the checklist items of a typical training camp film. The rescue swimmer candidates are subjected to arduous drills dealing with oxygen deprivation, hypothermia, and how to approach a drowning victim in the high seas. That one didn't look like much fun.

No basic training film would be complete without the obligatory off-base romance. To win a bet, Fischer begins to court a local schoolteacher (Melissa Sagemiller). That subplot along with the chatter at a local watering hole churns up some valuable screen time.

It is too easy to dismiss "The Guardian" as nothing more than a predictable, watery retread of "An Officer and a Gentleman." This reviewer found himself engrossed in the tense action rescue scenes that highlight the film from beginning to end.

But it is Costner who carries the film with his gritty performance as the conflicted trainer, bringing to mind a similar performance by Clint Eastwood in "Heartbreak Ridge."

"ALL THE KING'S MEN" GRADE: **

All the King's Men" is a fascinating look at the dark side of politics.

It's beautiful to look at and listen to, and well acted by Sean Penn and Jude Law.

The only problem is it's hard to care what happens to

WRITE THE WAY

Assessing the situation (Wakefield)

"Wakefield's Selectmen expressed their pleasure at the number of applicants who submitted applications to fill the several vacancies, including the Board of Assessors, the position of Town Constable, and on the Board of Health," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Members of the Board of Assessors Yano Tine and Linda Boucher presented Jane A. D'Adderio, Paul Faler, Alfred Razzaboni and Edward Stone. They nominated Paul Faler for the opening created when Chairman Michael Alekshun resigned.

"Selectwoman Phyllis Hull commented, 'It is a shame that we have to appoint members when the people should have had the chance to vote for them.' The board voted unanimously for Paul Faler.

"The entire Board of Health came to the meeting and Anne Marie Mitchell and Sam Stella advised that Judith Carmilia and Ann McGonigle Santos had applied for the position.

"Mitchell nominated Ann McGonigle Santos, saying, 'We feel that her legal experience will add a new dimension to the Board of Health.'

"Phyllis Hull nominated Judith Carmilia to fill the opening left by Pat Zingariello and the Board of Selectmen voted seven for Santos and one for Carmilia.

"Kevin Lopes resigned as Town Constable and Bob Brooks, Paul Fennelly, Robert Foley, Jason Lowry, John Ruehrwein, Senior and James Smith submitted applications.

"The Board of Selectmen accepted the nomination of Robert Foley and unanimously voted in favor of this appointment.

"Selectman John Encarnacao distributed a letter to the Selectmen suggesting that rather than hire architects or engineers to assist in selling municipal buildings, it be done in house...."

Wishes to be granted (Woburn)

"The Woburn Redevelopment Authority voted 5-0 to name Joseph T. Garbino of Woburn to be the city's next grant writer," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Earlier this year, Mayor Thomas McLaughlin asked the WRA - an arm of the city in a wide range of activities - to oversee the grant writer's position.

"A Grantwriter Selection Committee of WRA Chairman John Marlowe, Richard Miliano and WRA Executive Director Donald Borchelt conducted the search and interviews for the post.

"We made it clear to all these people it is not just a grant writer's position for the WRA," said Miliano in a report to the full authority. 'Some 80 percent of it will involve the city's schools and other areas. We made a major point out of that.'

"According to Miliano, after interviews, all members of the committee came up independently with the same candidate: Joseph T. Garbino of Arcadia Street in Woburn.

"The City Council has approved the funding for the position of grantwriter, which is included in the mayor's budget, the committee pointed out.

"The Grantwriter Selection Committee, technically appointed by the chairman, reviewed the six resumes which had been received in response to the advertisement placed in the Daily Times Chronicle.

"The committee selected four individuals for interview, based upon the resume review. All four individuals were interviewed by the committee.

"Based upon these interviews, the committee is recommending that Joseph Garbino, Arcadia Street, Woburn, be hired as the part-time grantwriter, at the salary of $500 per week for 16 hours per week, the committee recommended...."

Are we there yet? (Burlington)

"As the attorney representing the Simon Property Group said, 'all the loose ends have been tied up,' the Burlington Planning Board voted to approve four applications which will expand the Burlington Mall by about 53,000 square feet," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The votes were: 5-0 to approve a site plan for the Nordstrom fashion specialty retailer to replace Filene's. Chairman Paul Raymond and member John DeFrancesco did not participate, as they missed earlier testimony.

"Before the hearing started, board member Ernest Covino said he has 'a possible conflict of interest' involving a certain subfoundation which could be needed for the project.

"Covino said he has filed the necessary papers with the state Ethics Commission and the town clerk's office.

"Filene's will be razed, and Nordstrom will become an anchor store at the mall.

"The facility will total 257,000 square feet; the building itself will be two stories totaling 149,000 square feet, and there will be two of what attorney Mark Vaughan of the local firm of Riemer & Braunstein, representing Simon, called 'expansion access corridors' heading to the Nordstrom store.

"We don't feel there are any more outstanding items," Vaughan said.

"These corridors will encompass 108,000 square feet and include 22 new retail stores.

"Filene's was a 185,000 square foot building, and three years ago, a 44,000 square foot, third floor addition.

School Notes

NOW AND THEN AND 2007

In the planning (Winchester)

The School Committee approved a new schedule of extended class periods for Winchester High, but it is not planned to go into effect until September of 2007," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"As a result of the change, however, the Science Department might take a hard hit in class time."

"Under the current schedule, the high school has seven blocks per day in a six-day cycle. Each class meets every day of the cycle for about 48 minutes, except for physical education, health, and most science courses."

"Teachers instruct five classes daily, and have one preparation period and one duty period."

"Most science classes have a double lab on one day of the cycle. Over 200 students are in electives or foreign languages miss one block of class per cycle to do lab work, said Principal Thomas Gwin."

"Over the course of a year, these students miss about 30 classes of a course to do the lab work," said Gwin. "This is a serious flaw in the current schedule."

"The new schedule is a seven-day cycle with five, 67-minute blocks per day. Total instructional time is the same."

"There are many advantages to the new schedule in terms of student learning, said Gwin. All the students who miss one elective/foreign language block per cycle will no longer miss a class."

"Extended blocks also allow for a variety of instructional strategies, including the chance to cover content and material more in depth, said Gwin."

"It will put a stop to 'chalk and talk' and will experiment with new types of instruction," he said...."

Belting it out (Wilmington)

"Splitting boards with their feet was the culmination of the Martial Arts Empowerment Program for sixth grade Middle School students who completed a leadership empowerment program," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"For the second year the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc., offered this program under the auspices of a United Way of Merrimack Valley grant. The group is a collaboration with the Wilmington Public Schools and Master James Kenney Silver Lake ATA Taekwondo."

"The 22 students were energized by the martial arts experience for which they earned orange belts as well as the group discussions in which they learned leadership skills like respecting others and themselves, communicating in ways others will hear, and asserting themselves positively."

"My son thoroughly enjoyed this program. He was proud of himself and it added to his self-esteem," explained one parent on a program questionnaire. Another parent was enthusiastic about her daughter being more 'positive and optimistic.'

"My greatest joy as a principal has been watching students blossom through the caring efforts of teachers, other staff, and programs like this one - I wish all of our students could have participated," Kate Conway, Middle School principal, exclaimed.

"This program has been a great collaboration between the Wilmington Schools, Silver Lake Taekwondo, and ourselves, much to the benefit of the students who grew in stature and friendship and self-regard," said Carol Golub, Ph.D., Executive Director. "It is well worth our efforts to secure United Way funding which hopefully we have for another year."

Enjoying retirement (Lynnfield)

"The Center School is a distant memory for most in Lynnfield, but now retired Summer Street School educators Janet Colozzi, Bette Shoreman and Linda Wilson remember the ten-room school house fondly, and with vivid detail," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"Mr. Stone taught gym in a space about the size of this room," Wilson said while sitting in Colozzi's office at Summer Street.

"And my clinic was the size of a closet - right next to the furnace," Colozzi added.

"Despite the smallness of Colozzi's clinic, Shoreman remembered a big perk."

"There was a phone in the main office, and if you wanted to make a personal call everyone knew your business," she said. "She had a phone because she was a nurse, she needed one - when she wasn't there, at least, we could use the phone."

"It was this old, decrepit red brick school building, but everyone loved going there," Shoreman said. "At the end of the day, all the teachers would stand and chat about the day for five or ten minutes."

"All three couldn't talk about the Center School without bringing up Dr. Nancy Santeusano, the former principal they spoke about in glowing terms."

"She had quite an impact on everyone," Colozzi said.

"She had very high expectations of everyone, but no more than she had of herself," Wilson said.

"Shoreman called her 'wonderful, bright, innovative,' and echoed Wilson's comments about Santeusano's high expectations."

"She was tough - we'd have to bring our plan book and she checked everyone's plan books, went over them in red ink," she said with a smile.

"Shoreman said Santeusano always picked wonderful teachers - 'the best of the best' - and that she expected a lot but she gave back a lot...."

"Race, Class, Gender (does not equal) Character" exhibit, running from November 4 to February 4 in the museum's main gallery.

The exhibition is a riveting collection of paintings, sculptures, and mixed-media pieces that convey the message that, just as a book cannot be judged by its cover, a person's character cannot be judged by race, class, gender, politics, nationality, religion or other broad associations.

The Revolving Museum is located at 22 Shattuck Street in Lowell. Telephone number is 978-yes-arts or on-line at www.revolvingmuseum.org.

Celtics great Jo Jo White is seeing much better

Legendary Celtics forward Jo Jo White, still a "player" in The Boston Celtics organization as Director of Special Projects, now sees much clearer - and without glasses.

"It's so much more convenient, without the glasses," said White. "It was very smooth and easy. I didn't miss a beat."

Both Jo Jo and his wife, Deborah, were treated by Drs. Wilson Horsley and Nilesh M. Sheth of the Horsley Eye Center this winter using the new Wave Scan Eximer laser by Visx.

Jo Jo was back at work - actually at one of his daughters' soccer matches - the next day. He felt so well he didn't want to come in for the typical follow-up exam after a few days.

Jo Jo is very busy with helping the Celtics and with charity events. He is a natural posing for photos and likes the way he looks without glasses that reflect photographers' lights.

Horsley Eye Center is located at 3 Woodland Road, Suite 120 in Stoneham, 781-979-0960.

Hoagland from S-1

failed campaign of Thomas Dewey against President Harry S. Truman and with both successful Eisenhower campaigns.

Because of his experience with AR&D, Hoagland assisted in the founding of Fidelity Investments' venture capital program, Fidelity Ventures Limited Partnership. The books press material states that from his youth in Colorado Springs, Colorado, La Jolla, California, and Asheville, North Carolina, to his education at Stanford University, and throughout his long and successful career, Harry Hoagland earned the respect and admiration of some of the most influential people in America, helping to shape post-war American politics and business. These influential people included former President George H. W. Bush.

Despite all of this, Hoagland was really a behind the scenes mover and shaker. Little of his life would have been known had not his wife, Annie Ray Hoagland (Strange) sought to have the New England Genealogical Society produce a biography on her late husband.

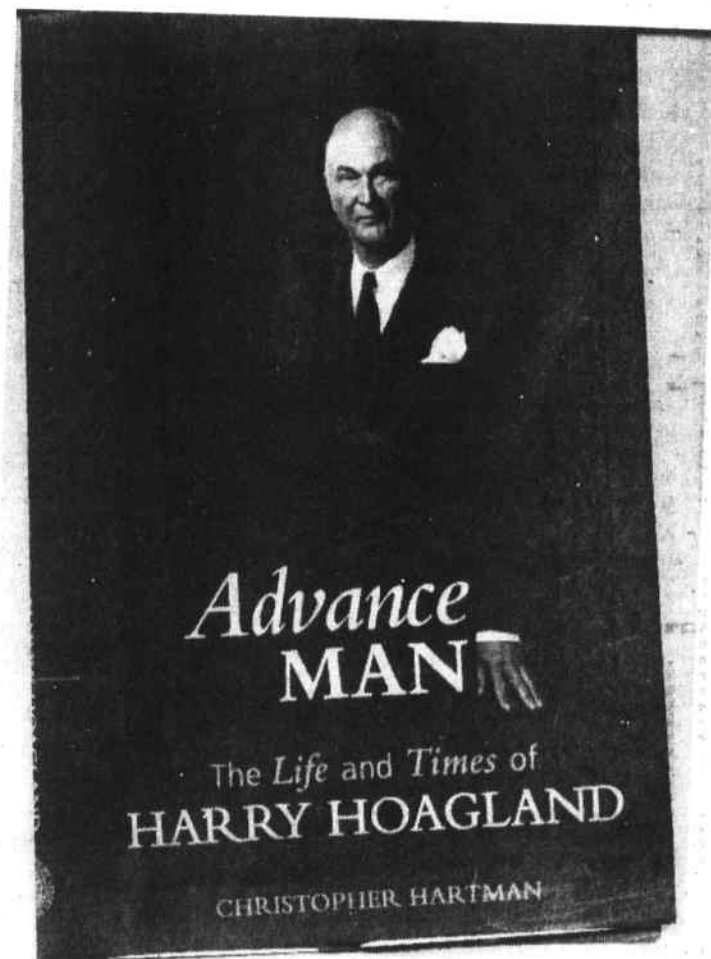

At that time Hartman, a writer and a specialist in the field of rare books, was the editor of the Society's publication, the Newbury Street Press. When he heard of the request he volunteered to fulfill it.

The project took about four years and led him to travel from Boston to Texas, Maine, New York and many other places, as he traced down Hoagland's history and talked to the people who knew him.

"I think it's a great story about someone who was influential and at the same time did not wish to have the spotlight on him. He took great pleasure in helping others accomplish their goals," Hartman said.

He added, "The thing that impressed me the most, everyone I called, called me back. Everyone wanted to speak about him. It is surprising to find someone so well liked and refreshing at the same time."

The book was published in 2005 and sells for $29.95. For copies, write to: George Hartman, 391 Vernon Street, Wakefield, MA 01880-1134.

Tenor Joseph Holmes An "Evening Serenade" this Friday

The Center for Performing Arts, Inc. will present a concert with tenor Joseph Holmes on Friday evening, October 20th, 2006 at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Wakefield, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The performance will include a serenade of famous Italian songs and arias along with classics and Broadway favorites. Guest performers Bradley Pennington, founder and artistic director of Boston Bel Canto Opera, on piano and Erica Pisaturo, a 1999 graduate of Wakefield High School and a concert violinist who has performed with several area orchestras, on violin.

Proceeds from the concert will benefit the Theatre Project at Wakefield High School and the Wakefield High School Alumni Foundation.

Holmes, a 1999 graduate of Wakefield High School, made his operatic debut with Boston Bel Canto Opera at the age of seventeen as Il Messaggero in Verdi's Aida at Jordan Hall in Boston. He has also performed with the Cleveland Opera, Lyric Opera Cleveland, Opera Boston, and in the role of Normanno in Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor.

He recently made his Colorado Symphony Orchestra debut as Nanki-Poo in their 2006 production of The Mikado under the baton of Maestro Duain Wolfe. Holmes was also a regional semi-finalist in the 2006 Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions, resulting in invitations to perform in concerts sponsored by the Council. Other engagements this summer have included concert appearances with Boston Lyric Opera, Boston Bel Canto Opera and Opera Providence.

Holmes is a graduate of Oberlin Conservatory and New England Conservatory. He is a recipient of the Handel and Haydn Society's Barbara E. Maze Award for Vocal Excellence.

Tickets are $15 per person and can be purchased at Sweetbay Flowers, 339 Salem Street, and Smith Drug, 390 Main Street, both in Wakefield, or by calling (781) 245-7219 or (781) 944-1368. Admission will include a post-show reception.

Seating is limited. For additional information about the concert or Joseph Holmes, visit www.josephholmes.com

"Heads up: Concussions in High School Sports"

As various sports seasons and extracurricular activities kick into high gear, the Center for Disease Control (CDC) is working to spread awareness when it comes to concussions.

The CDC has developed a new multimedia educational tool kit entitled Heads Up: Concussions in High School Sports.

More than 300,000 sports and recreation-related traumatic injuries occur each year in the United States.

Concussions are a form of traumatic brain injury that's caused by a blow or jolt to the head, which can range from mild to severe. This form of injury disrupts the manner in which the brain normally works, and the symptoms manifest physically in an array of different ways.

Those who are most at risk of suffering a concussion are individuals who take part in sports or activities where a sudden jolt could be sustained.

Although concussions are often referred to as "dings" or having one's "bell rung," even the mildest of concussions can pose a serious threat to one's health. A lack of awareness about the effect of concussions could result in allowing an athlete to return to play too soon following the initial injury and this places that person at higher risk of developing a more serious or potentially fatal condition.

Let card and clipboard sticker for coaches, posters targeting athletes, fact sheets in English and Spanish for parents and teens, and a CD-ROM featuring downloadable kit materials and other discussion-related resources.

Athletes who show signs or symptoms of a concussion should be kept from play until the appropriate medical personnel have evaluated the injury and given them the "go ahead" to return to the sport or activity.

The key message to athletes in the tool kit is, "it's better to miss one game than the whole season."

To order the entire kit or to download additional information on concussions, go online and visit www.cdc.gov/ncei/tbi/CoachesToolKit.htm

Parade of Homes on Sunday, October 21

NORTH READING - Area residents probably already know that North Reading has some of the most spectacular homes in New England and this Saturday, October 21, citizens will have an opportunity to view many of these homes during the annual Parade of Homes.

The event, to be held from 12:00 noon through 4:00 p.m., will serve as a sort of open house for an array of properties, ranging in style, size, location and market value as part of the North Reading Easter Seals Parade of Homes.

The homes on the parade are not for sale, but visitors can get fabulous decorating, gardening and other design ideas from these properties.

Hosted by local realtors from Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil, this even has been a huge success in recent years, raising over $25,000 during the past two years.

"We have asked friends and neighbors to open their homes to the public in order to raise money to donate to the Easter Seals," explained David O'Neil, President of Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil.

He added, "Much like a traditional Sunday open house that is conducted while marketing a property, the public is invited to see decorating

Slender Sherbrooke has immense charm

By Associated Designs

The Sherbrooke brings to mind a European or Cape Cod cottage. And despite its immense charm, the home fits neatly on a fairly narrow city lot.

Interior square footage is much more generous than you might suspect. Close to 2,000 square feet of living space is spread out over three levels, and the basement adds another 900 square feet.

Designed with only one bedroom, this plan is ideal for empty nesters, or a single who appreciates having plenty of room to spread out. With its large walk-in closet, the second-story home office could double as a guest bedroom. The basement recreation room could also be converted to sleeping areas, if needed. It has two slender side windows, plus French doors with sidelights and a wide transom.

From the entry deck, half a flight up from the ground, you enter the main floor by stepping into a sunny, vaulted great room with a wide window bay. French windows fill most of three walls that face the street at a diagonal. This bright area is open to a dining room, which is partially separated from the kitchen by a raised eating bar.

A wood stove nestles into an alcove by the windows. Wide sliding doors lead into a skylit, vaulted sunroom, where another set of sliders links to a vaulted, covered deck which could be screened.

The Sherbrooke's utility room, pantry, linen and broom closets are just off the kitchen, as is a full bathroom with a built-in sauna.

ideas, kitchen and bath designs, landscaping accomplishments and a whole host of amenities that we envision as features that visitors might like to use in their own homes."

Tickets, when purchased in advance, are available at a price of $15 each or two for $25. On the day of the event, tickets are $21 per person.

Maps to all Parade Homes will be available on the day of the event. The cost of the maps has been underwritten thanks to several local businesses, with substantial profits benefitting the Easter Seals.

Easter Seals is an organization that helps people with all degrees and forms of disabilities - individuals disabled through illness, accident or aging - by providing technology resources, job training, employment, rehabilitation and therapy services, day care and in-home companionship for frail elders, summer camp activities and comprehensive up-to-date referrals for disability services to a wide array of agencies and organizations.

The Century 21 system has been affiliated with the Easter Seals since 1979.

As the organization's top contributor, Century 21 has raised over $80 million to help disabled children and adults to lead fuller, more independent lives.

For more information on the upcoming Parade of Homes, slated for Saturday, October 21, contact David O'Neil at Century 21 Spindler & O'Neil, by calling 978-664-2100, extension 27.

Movies

a hero that is at the same time sleazy.

For all the things it does right, Steven Zaillian's new adaptation of Robert Penn Warren's Pulitzer-winning novel is a letdown where it really counts. It fails to deliver a gripping emotional experience.

The rise of small-town activist Willie Stark (Penn) to the governorship of Louisiana - and the corruption he picks up along the way - is loosely based on the life of Huey Long, the Louisiana governor assassinated in 1935.

As in the book and 1949 film version, we witness

Stark through the eyes of Jack Burden (Law), a jaded newspaperman and son of Louisiana gentry who starts out championing Stark's attacks on the political establishment. Soon Jack finds himself co-opted, becoming one of Stark's closest advisers.

At first Penn's Willie Stark is a rawboned bumpkin, earnest about reform and a boring speaker. But when Stark realizes he's merely being used by the bosses to siphon votes away from another rural candidate, he's transformed into a fire-breathing, stage-stalking, fist-pounding political whirlwind. He promises to pave rural roads, provide free books to schoolchildren, build public hospitals, tax the oil companies and throw the elitists out on their ears. Later scenes show Stark, now facing an impeachment vote, attending a nighttime rally like something out of Hitler's Germany.

It's great stuff, but Stark's transition from defender of the people to corrupt politician seems abrupt, and the film never explains why Jack continues to compromise himself by remaining in Stark's employ.

James Gandolfini has a few fine moments as a smug political hack.

"All the King's Men" starts out strong and then evaporates.
